Petition drive for village rule change stalled

The steam appears to have gone out of the petition drive aimed at forcing a referendum on replacing Arlington Heights' form of government with an aldermanic system

With the deadline for placing the question on the November election ballot only three weeks away, key persons in the effort apparently are unable or unwilling to take charge of the campaign.

The move to change the present at-large form of government originally was led by former village trustee Dwight Walton, a strong backer of Village Pres. James T. Ryan, who also favors the aldermanic system.

WALTON SPOKE to several homeowners' groups in March and April, but since then he has made little effort on behalf of the referendum. He said his personal commitments in the fall probably will not permit him to take up the fight in a leadership role.

"As of this moment we haven't done a thing," Walton said, but added, "I would think it would be on the ballot in November."

Despite the absence of an organization to back the drive, he said he saw little trouble in gathering enough signatures to put the question before the public in November.

"I really don't think there will be much of a problem in getting the 1,100 or 1,200 signatures we need," he said.

Even if an organization is put together in time to collect the signatures, he said, "I don't think I'll be the instigator."

RYAN SAID HE still favors conducting a referendum on the question of changing the present system under which trustees are elected by the entire village to one of having councilmen elected from specific districts.

"I understood it was to be put on the ballot for November. I think the people should have the right to choose whether they want it or not," Ryan said.

However, he said "it was never my position" to take a leadership role in the active petitioning.

Another name mentioned as a potential leader of the petitioning was Leonard Perkins, a village plan commissioner and a partner in State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman's law office.

Like the other nominal leaders, Perkins is unsure whether he could take charge of the campaign.

"WE TALKED in March and April about doing things . . . but I'm not really sure who is going to lead this," Perkins said.

Although Perkins said he thought a change in the form of government should be made, he acknowledged "nobody's pushed it" so far.

After the admitted lack of activity for several months, Perkins said, "I really don't know whether it (the petitioning) will be revived."

Dist. 214 hires experts to speak against unit

A team of educational experts has been hired by High School Dist. 214 to testify against the formation of an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district at public hearings being held by the county schools superintendent.

The Dist. 214 Board Monday approved hiring Fred Raubinger and Robert A. Burnham as "expert witnesses" for the hearings.

The board followed the advice of Faywell, James and Brooks — the law firm hired by the district to oppose the unit district movement — in hiring Raubinger and Burnham.

The consultants will charge the district $150 per day plus traveling expenses. The law firm estimated the cost of the consultants' services should not exceed $3,500.

RAUBINGER HAS served as a professor and chairman of the department of educational administration at the University of Illinois. He also has been the state commissioner of education in New Jersey.

Burnham has been the dean and professor of the college of education at Illinois State University.

The proposed unit district, which is being opposed by Dist. 214 and supported by Dist. 59, must go through a series of hearings before being approved by state officials to be put to a referendum.

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick is reviewing the evidence presented at the first hearing to determine whether additional hearings should be held on financial and educational issues.

Water woes easing a bit: officials

by KURT BAER

Lawn sprinkling restrictions imposed this summer throughout the Northwest suburbs are paying off for some communities with higher water levels in wells and storage tanks, officials said Tuesday.

But despite improvements in some areas, the summer water worries are not over yet, they said.

"We know people are still violating the sprinkling ordinance, watering at night on non-sprinkling days and other things like that," said Donald Renner, director of utilities for Arlington Heights, which allows sprinkling on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays only.

"IN MANY CASES we're getting calls from a neighbor telling us that some guy is watering his lawn all the time and ought to get a ticket for it," he said.

"But by and large people have been good about knocking off on non-sprinkling days," Renner said, and compliance with the law is saving two to three million gallons of water on peak demand days.

"We're still pumping 12 to 13 million gallons a day, but it's not the peak 14-, 15-and 16-million-gallon days we were having last month," Renner said.

Because of the lower water use, pumps have been able to "rest" and the underground water table has recovered so that it is now 5 to 10 feet higher in the wells than it was earlier in the summer, he said.

NEVERTHELESS, on peak sprinkling days, such as last Saturday and Thursday, users still manage to empty the village's two water towers, Renner said.

Wheeling's public works director, Larry Oppenheimer, said that levies in the village's four 28-foot water towers have remained about normal since a ban on all sprinkling in the village was put into effect earlier this year.

"Before the ban, water was dropping to dangerously low levels," he said. At present, water levels in the reservoirs will drop four to five feet a day but then climb back up, Oppenheimer said.

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis said the sprinkling ban in the village is still in effect and has reduced water use by about a million gallons a day.

"THE RESERVOIRS have been filled and the pumps have not had to run as many hours as they were before. I don't know what the actual water level in the wells is. But the cooperation of the citizens has reduced the number of gallons we were using," he said.

In Rolling Meadows a total ban on springling has brought well water levels out of the danger area, said James Muldowney, city engineer.

"We had some long periods of prolonged pumping such that the level in some wells was getting dangerously low and the city instituted a sprinkling ban. But we have now recovered to the pre-heavy pumping level," he said.

The sprinkling ban in Rolling Meadows is expected to be lifted Sept. 1.

IN MOUNT PROSPECT, Public Works Director Dovid L. Creamer said this week that water tables in 10 operating levels have risen about five feet since new sprinkling limits were put into effect. Mount Prospect now restricts sprinklings to Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Residents are prohibited from watering at any time between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Since Aug. 1, Mount Prospect has been using an average of 4.4 million gallons of water a day. In July, before the new sprinkling regulations, water consumption was as high as 8.9 million gallons a day.

Tentative accord met in Dist. 25 contract talks

A tentative agreement has been reached on a 1976-77 teachers' contract in Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Details of the settlement will not be released, however, until the district's teachers' union reviews the contract at a meeting Sept. 1, union officials said. Teachers will vote on the pact Sept. 7.

"We've reached agreement on everything, but nobody's ratified it yet," James Montgomery, director of instruction and board of education spokesman, said Tuesday.

"I think we've got together and resolved things that are problem areas. It's something we can live with and I feel the members of the (teachers') association are pleased," he said.

James Modec, teachers' union president, said, "Taking into consideration the district, the closing of schools and laying off of teachers, I'm satisifed with it. But the typical human being always wants more."

Modec said the teachers went into negotiations, which started in May, "with the idea of setting priorities." Items that were bargained included salary and a method for releasing teachers because of declining enrollment and financial problems.

Wheeling sues to recover bribe losses

by LINDA PUNCH

The Village of Wheeling Tuesday filed a $1 million damage suit against five former officials and five firms connected with the 1974 zoning shakedown scandal in an attempt to recoup bribe money paid to the officials.

The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, asks for a return of the bribe money paid to the officials as well as $1 million in punitive damages. Wheeling Village Atty. John Burke said the suit also asks for an accounting of "all bribes taken or extortions made" since "the methods used made it difficult to ascertain the amounts involved."

Wheeling officials contend that the zoning scandal cost the village "large sums of money" in legal fees and other expenses to correct zoning problems created by the payoffs. The suit also contends that the reputation of the village and its citizens has "been irreparably damaged" by the scandal.

DEFENDANTS IN the suit include James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman, William Bieber, former village building director; Michael Valenza, former village trustee; William Hart, former village trustee; Bernard Wasmer, owner of Duo Sign and Billboard, Wheeling; Zale Construction Co., Arlington Heights; Harmony Builders, Wheeling; Meister-Neibert Co., Wheeling; Wickes Corp., Wheeling; and Ben Pekin Corp., Wheeling.

The village also is seeking $25,000 from the Ohio Casualty Insurance Co., which Burke said had bonded the village officials "for honest and faithful performance of their duties."

None of the defendants in the lawsuit were available for comment.

Burke said the suit is the first of its kind since a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in Illinois Appellate Court. In that case, State's Atty. Bernard Carey, asked Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order Barrett to pay more than $180,000 to the county because the clerk abused "his position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

BARRETT WAS convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from the firm, which sold voting machines to Cook County. Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December.

The Wheeling suit includes complaints against:

- William Bieber — the suit states that Bieber accepted money and property from Ben Pekin Corp. and other individuals and companies "by the use of fear of economic harm." The suit contends that Bieber "actively and fraudulently sought secret and personal gains for himself" in violation of his trust as a village official. It asks that Bieber be required to pay the amounts of the payments, which include $1,700 worth of furniture and two round-trip airline tickets to Miami Beach, Fla.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975.

- Michael Valenza — The suit states that Valenza in 1971 used his position as a trustee to exert "influence" and "control" to "unlawfully obtain property, which was not due him, from Wickes Corp." The suit contends that Valenza violated his position of trust and caused damage to the village by "unjustly" enriching himself. It asks that Valenza be required to pay to the village an amount equal to the value of the gifts and other items involved in the bribery scheme.

Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974 and was sentenced to a nine-month prison term.

- William Hart — The suit states that Hart in 1971 used his influence to force Wasmer to ignore an earlier agreement preventing Hart from operating a competing sign company in the village. It contends Hart violated his position of trust and caused damage to the village by "unjustly" enriching himself. It asks that Hart be required to pay the village an amount equal to money, property and benefits received from Wasmer.

Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June, 1974 and was sentenced to one year on probation.

- James Stavros — the suit states that Stavros took payments totaling $92,000 from Zale Construction Co., Harmony Builders and Meister-Neiberg Co. in 1971, 1972 and 1973 in return for using his influence and control over "certain village officials" to obtain necessary zoning changes, building permits and other village approval for proposed developments. It contends that Stavros "unjustly enriched" himself and caused damage to the village by causing village officials to breach their duties. The suit asks that Stavros be required to pay to the village an amount equal to the gifts.

Stavros in 1974 pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax evasion charges and was sentenced to a four-year prison term. He is currently at a Chicago correctional center awaiting a parole Sept. 8.

- Zale Construction Co., Harmony Builders, Wickes Corp., Ben Pekin Corp. and Bernard Wasmer — the suit contends these five offered property, services or other benefits to induce village officials to breach their duty to the village. It asks that the five be required to pay to Wheeling an amount equal to the value of the property, services or benefits.

The village board Monday voted 5-1 to initiate the lawsuit following a two-hour executive session. Trustee William Hein, who voted against the suit, said he thought it should have been reviewed more thoroughly before being filed.

HEIN SAID HE called for a similar class action civil suit in 1974 but was "advised by the U.S. Attorney's office that we were stepping onto pretty hallow grounds. They advised us not to pursue it."

Hein said he also feels the suit is another reminder of Wheeling's past problems and that "the only way to get rid of the black eye image is for the officials to stop talking about it."

"The only way to go forward is to start forgetting the past," he said.

Legion members boo Carter's draft resister stand

DEMOCRATIC presidential nominee Jimmy Carter has serious look instead of usual smile Tuesday as he addresses American Legion National Convention in Seattle. Legion members booed him as he said he would grant a blanket pardon to Vietnam-era draft resisters.

SEATTLE (UPI) — Flagwaving members of the American Legion booed and shouted "No, No" for three minutes Tuesday to interrupt Jimmy Carter when he told them he would grant a blanket pardon to Vietnam-era draft resisters.

But at the conclusion of Carter's speech, in which he also advocated a strong military posture and a possible resumption of the draft as a last resort, he was given a standing ovation by delegates to the legion's 35th annual national convention.

Carter's speech was generally well received, and he was interrupted by applause 21 times before he came to the final passages on draft resisters.

The Democratic presidential candidate said his own son, Jack, served in Vietnam with other American fighting men and "I could never equate what they have done with those who left this country and did what they did to avoid the draft.

"But I think it is time for the damage and hatred and divisiveness of the Vietnam war to be over."

The crowd applauded and Carter went on.

"I want you to listen carefully for I want you to understand what I say. I do not favor a blanket amnesty" — and there was some applause — "but for those who violated Selective Service laws I intend to grant a blanket pardon."

There was a roar of "No!" from the Maryland delegation and from other legionnaires throughout the auditorium and about a dozen persons stood up and waved their thumbs toward the floor. The demonstration lasted three minutes.

Legion Commander Harry G. Weils of Topeka, Kan., rose next to Carter and slammed his gavel repeatedly for order, but said afterward he also disagrees with Carter's position.

"We agree 100 per cent with half of it," said Weils. "Our position is that both draft dodgers and deserters should be taken care of on a case by case basis."

Past national commander Earl Cocke Jr. of Dawson, Ga., about 20 miles from Carter's home in Plains, said legionaires are not happy with Carter's position. He said they also do not like President Ford's last effort which limited amnesty, "But we can live with it.

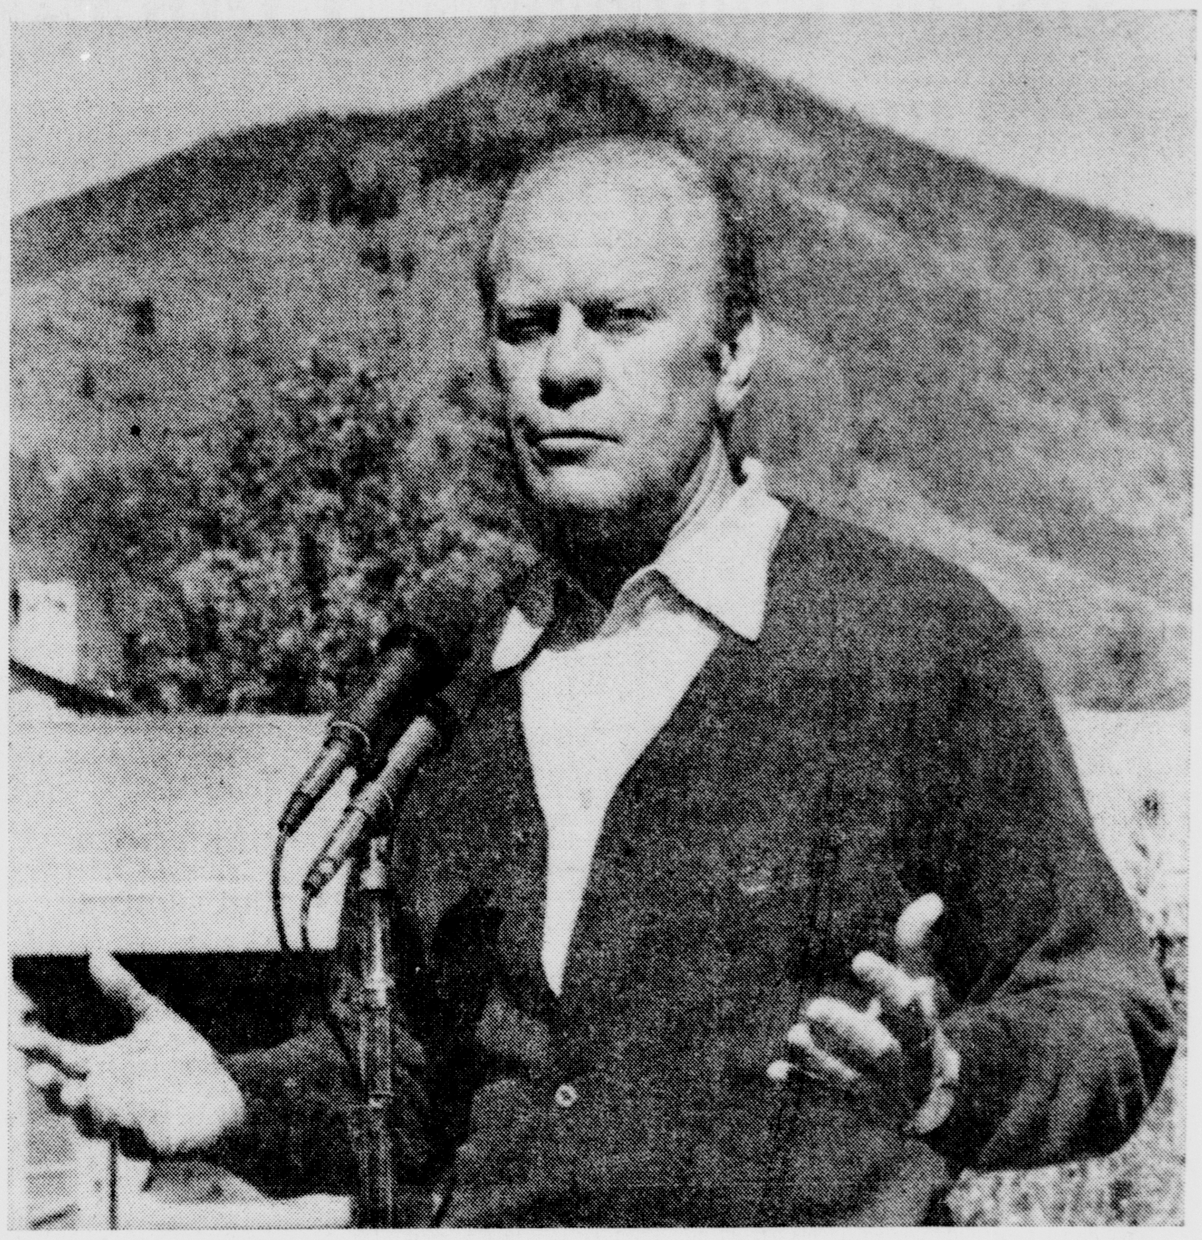

In Vail, Colo., meantime, Ford challenged Carter to a series of four full-scale debates, beginning right after Labor Day. Saying the "American people have the right to know" where he and Carter stand, Ford told reporters "I think we'll get the campaign off on the right track — the sooner the better."

Representatives for both sides said they would meet Thursday to discuss arrangements for the debates.

Ford proposed the four debates should last no longer than 90 minutes each. He said the four debates should cover defense, domestic policy, foreign policy and economic policy in that order.

He specifically proposed the first debate be held Sept. 8, 9 or 10.

Ford made the announcement after meeting with his advisers at Vail to discuss the President's campaign role and to map tactics for his running mate, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas.

PRESIDENT GERALD FORD, at outdoor news conference in Vail, Colo. Tuesday, announced an offer to debate Jimmy Carter on defense, domestic and economic issues in four face-to-face confrontations starting after Labor Day. Ford and his family are vacationing at the mountain resort.

Zulu tribesmen rampage through Soweto

Hundreds of Zulu tribesmen armed with clubs and knives and chanting war songs rampaged through the black S. African township of Soweto Tuesday, killing at least six black militants trying to enforce a work boycott, witnesses said. Hospital sources at the all-black Baragwanath hospital near Soweto, south of Johannesburg, said about 90 persons had been treated for injuries from the violence. Police said groups of Zulu vigilants escorted black commuters from trains and buses when they returned from Joahnnesburg. The Zulus, the majority tribe among the 1 million inhabitants of Soweto, clashed repeatedly with the strike gangs, police said.

Israel praises Egypt's skyjack action

The hijacking of an Egyptian jetliner by agents for Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy was an attempt to undermine the re-election chances of President Anwar Sadat, a government source said Tuesday. In Jerusalem, the Israeli government issued rare praise for Egypt for the foiling of the hijacking and the rescue of its passengers, calling the action "courageous."

Marcos rejects U.S. offer of quake aid

Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos Tuesday rejected an American offer of aid for more than 175,000 victims of last week's earthquake and tidal wave disaster in the southern Philipines. In a cable to Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Marcos said his country would "meet our present difficulties through our own initiative and resources."

Appeal court jury says Howe guilty

Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, Tuesday was convicted a second time on charges he offered to pay two women police decoys for sex acts. A Third District Court jury of five men and three women deliberated 22 minutes before returning their verdict to end a two-day appeal trial. Judge Bryan Croft set Wednesday for sentencing on the misdemeanor charges. Howe testified earlier that he had only a friendly chat with the two decoys and denied charges he sought sex acts from them.

Patty psychiatric report to judge

A detailed psychiatric report on Patricia Hearst, which took federal authorities four months to prepare, has been sent to the judge who will determine her final sentence for armed bank robbery. The in-depth diagnostic tests were ordered following her conviction March 20 of taking part in the holdup of a San Francisco bank in April, 1974, 10 weeks after she was kidnaped by the Symbionese Liberation Army. Miss Hearst has been undergoing the examinations at a federal correctional facility in San Diego. A spokesman for the prison said the report, which will remain confidential, was sent late last week to U.S. District Judge William Orrick. Orrick was appointed to take over the celebrated case after the death of the trial judge, Oliver J. Carter.

Emmy churning toward Bermuda

Tropical storm Emmy churned northward in the Atlantic Tuesday on a course that could bring it near the resort island of Bermuda later this week. The storm, which is 300 miles wide, had top winds of 65 miles an hour and forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami have been expecting Emmy to intensify into a hurricane since Monday.

Month short of U.S. space record

Soviet cosmonauts return to earth

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts returned to earth Tuesday after a 49-day mission orbiting the earth aboard the Salyut 5 space laboratory.

An announcement by the official Soviet news agency Tass said the descent module carrying Boris Volynov and Vitaly Zhologov set down at 9:33 p.m. Moscow time (1:33 p.m. CDT) "in a pre-set area 200 kilometers (124 miles) southwest of the town of Kokchetav in Kazakhstan," the Central Asian Soviet republic.

"The cosmonauts' general condition is satisfactory," Tass said.

The cosmonauts, recently said to be suffering from "sensory deprivation," returned to earth more than a month short of the U. S. space endurance record. They also failed to equal the longest stay in space.

Tass said they completed "the planned working program onboard the station" Monday and on Tuesday "prepared the Soyuz 21 delivery ship for undocking and descent to earth and transferred the materials of scientific research to the descent module."

The cosmonauts separated their spaceship from the Salyut station at 6:12 a.m. Moscow time (12:12 p.m. CDT), Tass said. The spaceships braking engine was switched on and then shut off to free the descent module and propel it into the descent trajectory.

Cushioned by its parachute system, the descent module "landed smoothly," Tass said.

The cosmonauts rocketed into earth orbit July 6 and docked with the Salyut the next day.

By returning to earth at the end of their 49th day their stay was far short of the American record for a sojourn in space, 84 days by three astronauts in the Skylab program. The longest Soviet stay was 63 days by two cosmonauts aboard the Salyut 4 station a year ago.

Tass announced earlier Tuesday "the flight of the crew of the orbital scientific station is nearing completion."

The Tass announcement gave no suggestion the mission was being curtailed.

Repeated reports said the men felt physically well, but the government newspaper Izvestia reported one week ago they were suffering a psychological condition it called "a state of sensory deprivation, a sort of sensory hunger."

U.N., N. Korea view DMZ safety today

PANMUNJOM, S. Korea (UPI) — The U. N. Command and North Korea Tuesday agreed to meet in this truce village Wednesday to get Communist guarantees for the safety of U. S. soldiers inside the 2½-mile Demilitarized Zone separating the two Koreas. Agreement on the meeting, requested by President Ford, followed a U. S. policy switch on North Korea's message expressing regret for the ax murders of two Americans in the neutral zone last week.

South Korean officials privately deplored the U. S. comment that North Korea's latest announcement was "a positive step." They said the North Korean move reflected the Communists' desire to open a channel of dialogue with Washington and sideline the Seoul government. The meeting, the 380th since the Korean armistice was signed in 1953, was scheduled for 4 p.m. Wednesday (2 a.m. CDT Wednesday.)

The meeting originally was to be held Tuesday, but North Korea asked for a one-day delay at the last minute and the U. N. Command accepted the Communist proposal. Ford called for the session to guarantee the safety of Americans in the DMZ and settle other problems arising from the Aug. 18 slaying of two American officers by North Korean guards during a dispute over tree-pruning inside the truce enclave, which is 800 yards in diameter.

Since the incident the United States has stationed two fighter-bomber squadrons in South Korea, and a 7th Fleet task force led by the aircraft carrier Midway is patrolling the Korean east coast.

Rural crime increasing faster than in big cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Serious crime is increasing at a faster rate in rural America and the smaller towns than it is in the big cities, according to an FBI report released Tuesday that found an overall one year jump of 10 per cent.

The agency's annual Uniform Crime Reports, which came up with final figures for 1975, said there were nearly 11.3 million serious crimes committed last year but only one in five ended in arrest.

That broke down nationally to an average of 21 serious crimes committed every minute last year, including a violent crime every 31 seconds.

Crime has been rising at a slightly faster rate outside major urban areas. Serious crimes — such as murder, robbery and burglary — rose by 10 per cent in the suburbs last year and 8 per cent in rural areas. For those dwelling in cities with more than 250,000 residents, the rate was 7 per cent.

Walden Kennedy, of the agency's Uniform Crime Reports section, said the study indicates "the biggest volume of crime is in the mass of middle America, the average sized towns and cities."

He said the crime rates in city and rural areas were offset by volume of crime in suburban areas, which were considered those with large populations that fell below 250,000.

There was a larceny-theft every five seconds; a burglary each 10 seconds; a motor vehicle theft every 32 seconds; a rape every five minutes and a murder every 26 minutes, the study found.

"Law enforcement agencies do not clear or solve most crimes," said the report issued by FBI Director Clarence M. Kelly. "Only one-fifth of the serious crimes committed during 1975 were solved by arrest."

The study also found that murder increased by 4 per cent in rural areas and remained virtually the same in the suburbs. It declined by 1 per cent in the cities.

"In 1975, firearms again predominated as the weapon most often used in homicide in the nation," the report said. It found that 66 per cent of all homicides in the United States last year were committed with firearms, and that 51 per cent were handguns.

Young people made up a large percentage of those charged with murder last year. Forty-five per cent of those arrested were under the age of 25, and one quarter of them were between 20 and 24.

9 million population seen for region

Population in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area will increase to nine million in th enext 25 years, a planning agency predicted Tuesday. More than seven million persons now live in the region, and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission forecasts that the population will increase two million by the year 2000.

It made the prediction in a report for the Illinois Division of Water Resources which is considering what effect population growth will have on Lake Michigan and how to allocate community use of lake water in the future. The agency said in its report that Cook County's population will increase the most numerically, but the outlying areas will double in population.

It said Will County will surpass Kane County in size. Following are the commission's predictions comparing 1970 census population figures with the projections for the year 2000:

- Cook County, from 5.5 million to 6 million.
- Du Page County, from 490,800 to 987,100.
- Kane County, from 251,000 to 433,600.
- Will, from 247,800 to 553,000.
- Lake, from 382,600 to 700,100.

Marquette Pk. marches set

The Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. movement said Tuesday its members plan to march into the predominantly white Marquette Park neighborhood on Labor Day and the first three Saturdays in September. Rev. C. L. Turner, spokesman for the group, said he will ask the city for permits to march into the area Sept. 4, 6, 11 and 18.

When the King movement marched into Marquette Park July 17 to protest the area's reluctance to integrate, some two dozen persons were injured after area residents began throwing rocks and bottles at the marchers. Turner said there will be no violence in the proposed September marches "if the police do their job."

Berwyn police emergency

The Berwyn City Council Monday night declared a state of emergency in its police operations because of a work slowdown by police who contend their squadrols are unsafe. The nine cars in the police department are more than 18 months old and most have nearly 100,000 miles on them, according to Chief Charles Herold.

Herold said one of his men was injured and hospitalized with head injuries several days ago when a drive shaft fell out of his squad car and forced the vehicle to stop abruptly. "The squad car problem has been with us several months," Herold said. "I've been to many council meetings and asked for new cars, but the council says there's no money to buy them." Herold said the council voted Monday in favor of the leasing of four cars to help alleviate the present situation. "But we don't have them yet. The comptroller is trying to arrange the leasing deal."

ICC 'blackout' to remain

A federal judge Tuesday refused to dissolve a court order permitting television camera crews to film Illinois Commerce Commission hearings. ICC Atty. Donald Page Moore had asked U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall to lift the Aug. 6 temporary restraining order signed by Chief Judge James B. Parsons.

It resulted from a suit filed Aug. 5 by CBS Inc., charging that ICC commissioners unconstitutionally stopped camera crews from filming ICC hearings four times in July. The ICC held a hearing Tuesday on a Chicago and North Western Railway rate increase request, but the local CBS affiliate, WBBM-TV, did not send out a crew. Marshall indicated he would rule later this week on a request by CBS for a preliminary injunction that would permit the crews to film and tape record ICC hearings until the case is resolved.

Lawyers return extra fees

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said Tuesday two lawyers hired to work on a drug antitrust suit for Illinois have returned $52,000 in overpayments they received. The overpayment was made to attorneys Lee A. Freeman Sr., Chicago, and John Meyer, Danville, a longtime political campaign worker for Scott. Freeman and Meyer were part of a group of lawyers who nationally recovered millions of dollars from five drug companies convicted of price fixing of the antibiotic tetracycline.

Illinois' share of the recovered money was $5.1 million and Scott decided Freeman should receive a $660,000 fee. A New York judge set the amount at $712,000, however, and Freeman collected that amount. Scott sued him to recover the $52,000 difference, and he said Freeman, who has also worked under other attorneys general on complex antitrust cases, agreed two weeks ago to return the money. Freeman hired Meyer to work with him after Scott came into office.

Betting firm raid order

U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall Tuesday refused to extend a court order prohibiting policemen from raiding the offices of an off-track betting service. Marshall issued a temporary restraining order against the raids on Friday but suggested the case belongs in Cook County Circuit Court. His order expired Tuesday.

The off-track betting firm, Finish Line Express, filed a $20 million damage suit against police last Thursday, charging that its employes have been arrested despite a January Circuit Court decision that the company's activities do not violate Illinois gambling laws. The firm runs 10 offices throughout Chicago that send messengers to local racetracks to place bets for customers.

Illinois briefs

Teachers strike settlement unlikely

A strike by some 90 Carbondale teachers went into its second day Tuesday and some 1,400 high school students remained home on the first day of school. "We are far apart," said Reid Martin, high school superintendent, after negotiations between the high school board and the Carbondale Community High School Education Assn. were broken off after a session Monday afternoon.

Teachers had asked a $380 annual raise during negotiations in the spring.

In Vandalia, meanwhile, there were no prospects in sight for settlement of a two-day-old strike by some 116 teachers in the Vandalia Unit 203 School District with classes scheduled to start today for some 1,900 students.

'Only state can pay welfare bills'

State public aid director James Trainor said Tuesday doctors who treat welfare patients must be paid directly by the state. This will cut out Medicaid bill collectors, called factoring companies, some doctors hire to collect payments from the state. "I see the elimination of factoring companies as a way to remove a potential source of fraud," Trainor said. Trainor said some factoring firms are suspected of inflating bills handed over to them for collection.

In Social Security struggle

Police, fire chiefs win 1st fight

Illinois' police and fire chiefs have won the first round in a court battle to regain entitlement to Social Security benefits.

U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall Monday agreed to issue a temporary restraining order effective until Sept. 15 requiring municipalities to resume Social Security payroll withholding deductions for the chiefs.

Marshall, the emergency judge hearing the case in the absence of U.S. District Judge John F. Grady, acted during a hearing in Chicago on the civil rights, class action lawsuit filed last month by Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case on behalf of the state's chiefs and public employes.

The order was served on Rolling Meadows officials Tuesday.

Case's suit is challenging a ruling made in April by the Social Security Administration that police and fire chiefs and public employes participating in the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund are not entitled to Social Security benefits. The ruling was made effective retroactively in 1969.

CASE'S ATTORNEY, Richard McPartlin, said Monday Marshall approved the order after oral arguments were presented by attorneys representing the state and federal agencies involved.

"He said he would restrain the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund and the Social Security unit of the state administration and the secretary of the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare from refusing to allow Case to participate in the Social Security program," McPartlin said.

He said the order normally is valid for only a 10-day period, but attorneys for the defense agreed to extend the order until Sept. 15 when Grady, the judge originally assigned to the case, returns from vacation.

Another hearing is to be held before Grady on Sept. 15.

CASE HAS SAID the city stopped deducting Social Security payments from his paycheck in June because of the federal ruling.

McPartlin said the restraining order will direct the city to resume withholding Social Security payments for Case. City employes are to receive their next paychecks Friday.

"We would think that it should be retroactive," he added. "They should now take out deductions for whatever time they have not. That would be our theory."

City attorneys and officials were to be notified of the order Monday, McPartlin said.

Harvest fest filled with Joe's spirit

by MARY B. GOOD

The Italian sunflower had its day at the Arlington Heights Harvest Festival last weekend.

If life had not come to a close so soon for Joseph Frugoli, he would have been there, laughing and eating corn-on-the-cob, enjoying all the fun.

Joe was an engineer by occupation and an avid gardener by preoccupation. He worked a plot at Frontier Park and grew other things in his backyard on Ladd Street. He was instrumental in selecting Frontier Park as the site for this year's Harvest Festival.

Joe was on the committee that planned this day's activities, the flower and vegetable show, the water balloon contest and egg toss, the Little 500 tricycle race, hotdogs, cotton candy, corn —"you gotta have sweet corn!" he said.

BUT BEFORE anybody knew what happened, jovial Joe, the athletic, healthy-looking man who loved people and plants, was dead. Joe died two months ago at the age of 48. He was the victim of pesticide poisoning.

But Joe was at the Harvest Festival in spirit. His presence was felt in the delight and thrill of the children who brought their garden gems and took away ribbons for their efforts.

Children like 13-year-old Steve Kirkland of S. Patton Avenue, who beamed across the vegetable tables, "I won four," and then nearly turned the color of his green peppers from astonishment when the peppers swept the Junior Best of Vegetables.

Joe would have loved exchanging gab with other gardeners about their goodies. Friendly people like Ronald Quarnstrom, the "zucchini king," who raved about his Burpee seed experiments and the new varieties he tried this year — like the black radishes that won a blue ribbon.

Tracey Frugoli, Joe's daughter, just out of fourth grade at Greenbrier School, brought her father's plants to the show.

HE WOULD BE happy to know that his little girl won four blue ribbons and one red one — almost as many as Doreen Mills, who won the Joe Frugoli award for copping the most blue ribbons.

Doreen, a Prairie Park plot grower, knew Joe, and she was tickled that the Italian sunflowers she entered won the Best of Show — annuals. Doreen had ordered the seeds from Parks "just for laughs," because she is Italian, as was Joe.

Tracey Frugoli, her mother Arlene, and sister Angela, the musician in the family, spent the day at the Harvest Festival, having a great time. Mrs. Frugoli was touched that Angelo Capulli, the sparkplug park superintendant, and the Arlington Heights Park District chose to donate a trophy to the Harvest Festival Sweepstakes Winner, Doreen Mills, in honor of Mrs. Frugoli's gardener husband.

TRACEY FRUGOLI viewed the trophy with curiosity, the silver figure perked atop with one arm stretched skyward. "Does it have a mustache — like Daddy?" she wanted to know.

It was a grand day for flower show goers, but none more so than Tracey Frugoli, who skipped home down the tree-lined path that skirts the garden plots with all five ribbons pinned to the back of her jacket, blowing in the breeze.

"We did it, Daddy. We won!"

Doreen Mills with a smile as bright as her Italian sunflower.

Woman in fair condition after explosion

A Park Ridge woman was injured early Tuesday when a gasoline explosion gutted two units of a Schaumburg quadrohome, causing about $30,000 damage.

Carol Ambrosio, 22, of 910 S. Cumberland Dr., Park Ridge was in fair condition Tuesday night at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where she is being treated for second-degree burns over 30 per cent of her body.

Ms. Ambrosio was visiting Richard D. Ferraro, 26, of 227 Kendrick Ct., when fumes from gasoline spilled on a garage floor were ignited by a water heater pilot light when Ferraro opened the overhead doors.

FIRE CHIEF Lloyd Abrahamsen said Ferraro told him the couple smelled fumes at about 2 a.m. while playing cards in the kitchen.

Abrahamsen said the pair traced the fumes to the lower-level garage which they entered through a utility room.

Abrahamsen said firefighters discovered traces of gasoline on the garage floor apparently caused by a leak in the fuel tank of a car Ferraro was storing for a friend.

Flames spread to the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schmidt, 225 Kendrick Ct., but the couple escaped injury.

SCHMIDT SAID he and his wife left their apartment as soon as they heard the explosion, although they were unaware at the time it came from the rear of their building.

Abrahamsen estimated damage to the Ferraro and Schmidt apartments at $30,000, saying two other units in the building suffered "slight smoke damage."

Abrahamsen said state fire marshals "were satisifed" the explosion and fire were "accidental, with no sign of foul play."

2 hurt in separate cycle incidents

Two Northwest suburban residents suffered minior injuries Tuesday in two unrelated accidents involving motorcycles in Arlington Heights.

Police said Richard T. Hall, 18, of 4403 Linden Ln., Rolling Meadows, suffered an injured ankle at 10:17 a.m. Tuesday after he drove his motorcycle into a ditch to avoid colliding with an oncoming auto in a private drive at the Surrey Ridge Shopping Plaza, Golf and Algonquin roads.

Police said the driver of the auto fled without stopping to help Hall. Arlington Heights paramedics transported Hall to Northwest Community Hospital, where he was treated and released.

James M. Zale, 9, of 2828 N. Dryden Ct., Arlington Heights, reportedly suffered bruises and scrapes after a bicycle he was riding was struck by a motorcyclist at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday on the street in front of the boy's home.

Zale told police he could not remember circumstances of the accident, police said. The motorcyclist apparently fled without stopping.

Paramedics transported the youth to Northwest Community, where he was treated and released.

Negotiations continue locally

Teacher-pact talks 'unsettled'

Contract negotiations in six Northwest suburban school districts affiliated with the Illinois Education Assn. have been listed as "unsettled" but not "critical" by the statewide teachers union.

George King, Crisis Central director of the IEA headquarters in Springfield, said Tuesday 90 school districts have been placed on the critical list. In the state, 273 IEA affiliated school districts have not settled teacher contracts. The six from the Northwest suburbs are continuing negotiations "but could be placed on the critical list at any time," King said.

Also included in the "unsettled" list is the Northwest Suburban Special Education Cooperative teachers union, King said. The cooperative serves handicapped children from 10 Northwest suburban school districts.

KING SAID districts are placed on the critical list when there is a "complete breakdown in negotiations." He said the progress and quality of negotiations is considered before a district's situation is labeled critical.

Included on the list are school districts in Vandalia and Carbondale, which are on strike, and the Springfield school district, where teachers are expected to strike today unless progress is made in negotiations.

Seven local school districts and the NSSEO teachers union have failed to reach a contract settlement. The status of negotiations in those districts is:

• Prospect Heights Dist. 23 — Board and union negotiators met Saturday and have scheduled another meeting for Thursday. Representatives said negotiators are discussing a number of items. Negotiations took place between February and June and resumed in August.

• Arlington Heights Dist. 25 — A tentative settlement has been reached and will be reviewed by teachers for ratification Sept. 7. No contract terms have been released by negotiators. Negotiations began in April.

• River Trails Dist. 26 — The Dist. 26 teachers union declared contract talks at an impasse Aug. 12 and a mediator from the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service will sit in on negotiations at 10 a.m. today. A stalemate has been reached over six bargaining items including salary, class size, retirement policy and binding arbitration. Negotiations began in April.

• Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 — Union and board negotiators will meet today, Friday and possibly over the weekend to reach a settlement. Negotiations have been going on since February.

• Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96 — No formal teachers union has been formed in Dist. 96 and board members have been negotiating with the teachers' Systemwide Program Committee. Teachers have asked for a 9 per cent salary increase, which includes the 3 per cent raise teachers will receive this year for an additional year's experience.

• High School Dist. 125 — Negotiations have continued this summer but no settlement has been reached. Negotiators will meet again this week.

• High School Dis. 207 — Negotiations began in January and board, and teacher negotiators have met regulary since July. No contract has been reached and a representative of the teachers union said the teams still are discussing matters of agenda or what items will be negotiated.

• NSEO — Teachers, now affiliated with the IEA, are negotiating their first contract but no settlement has been reached. The NSSEO board will meet this weekend to review the progress of negotiations.

State attorney checking improprieties at Harper

by JOHN N. FRANK

An assistant state's attorney Tuesday interviewed the local representative of the Illinois Education Assn. as part of an on-going investigation of alleged improprieties by Harper College officials.

The investigation by the Cook County State's Attorney's office is the result of a request by David Tomchek, local IEA representative, who met with Jeffrey Simon, an assistant state's attorney.

Simon also has interviewed Harper Pres. Robert Lahti. Lahti said he could not comment on his interview with Simon.

"It's their investigation. I think it appropriate that they respond," he said.

Tomchek said he referred Simon to newspaper articles, which prompted his request for an investigation.

"I HAD VERY LITTLE to say to him," Tomchek said.

Simon confirmed that he has spoken to Lahti and Tomchek but said he could not discuss the substance of those interviews. He plans to discuss the investigation with his supervisors to determine which direction it should take, Simon said.

Tomcheck's letter to the state's attorney asked for an investigation of the following:

• Personal use of campus security vehicles by Lahti and board members.

• Free installation of air-conditioning equipment in the homes of Lahti and other faculty members by Harper personnel.

• A potential conflict of interest on the part of Lahti, who is a director and stockholder of the Bank of Elk Grove, where the college has an account.

• Alleged violations by the board of trustees of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

• Questionable practices regarding the purchase of meals at such meetings.

Two Harper trustee committees also have been investigating the charges.

One committee found no conflict of interest in Lahti's position on the Bank of Elk Grove's board of directors.

THE OTHER committee has determined:

• Lahti used college vehicles twice in the last two yeas when the college received no benefit from such use.

• Seventeen of the 24 meetings that The Herald reported were held in secret in the last 18 months were caucuses of the board's negotiation team and legally did not have to be announced.

• There was nothing improper about Lahti's having air-conditioning equipment installed in his home by Harper students.

The work was done as part of an air-conditioning course, the committee found. Such projects are common practice in courses which require "hands-on" experience.

Jack 'centers' on fields of Vail

Ford's vacation 'touch and goal'

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — The Secret Service played touch football on the playing fields of Vail Monday and President Ford's son Jack took part.

Four decades ago the President played center for the University of Michigan's varsity football team. Monday Jack played center for the Blue Secret Service team.

President Lyndon Johnson once joked that Ford played too much football without a helmet. Son Jack — and everyone else on the field Monday — played without a helmet.

HUSKY JACK HAD no trouble on the field with the Secret Service agents whose thick arms and thighs gave the appearance they all played center for Michigan and not in 1935. But the slender Don Penny, Ford's speech coach, also played and it seemed the grassy field below the snowless ski slopes was peopled by 1 Laurel and 11 Hardies.

Adult touch football can be as bone-crushing as the padded tackle version. But the Secret Service is not prone to manhandling members of the First Family.

Light finger slaps and hand pats did nicely with Jack playing, thank you.

The game's touchiest moment came on the sidelines where Ford's daughter Susan sat on the grass with the First Dogs, Liberty, and Liberty's 11-month old offspring, Misty. The football rather bored the two golden retrievers. Misty yawned, stretched and went to sleep in the midday sun.

LIBERTY PEACEFULLY licked the face of a young man seated next to Susan until a male golden retriever came swaggering around the tennis courts. The intruder sniffed the wind and ambled toward Liberty and Misty.

Misty slept, snoring. Liberty took fright at the male's approach and nuzzled its head into Susan's arms. Secret Service agents watched until the intruder retreated.

The players, wearing red and blue waistbands, declined to keep score. They said they were practicing for the Vail Superbowl Tuesday.

In President Kennedy's administration, touch football was THE White House sport and the tradition, although threatened by Jimmy Carter's softball, continues.

JACK, PENNY AND the agents practiced end runs as well as pitchouts and lateral passes similar to Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance baseball double plays. "Let's blitz Grits and Fritz," one player shouted in a reference to Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter "Fritz" Mondale.

The players found no solution to one handicap: Secret Service men on the sidelines occasionally interrupted play to call out to one of the players.

What do you do, first and 10 to go near your foe's goal line, when the White House beeper phone system blares out that the quarterback is wanted immediately back at the office of the President of the United States?

BETTY FORD, wearing a "Ford for President" hat, prepares to snap the football to members of a Secret Service flag football team during the Fords' 10-day vacation in Vail, Colo.

Maddox could cut Carter's support: AIP

by United Press International

If former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox ran for President on a third party ticket he would cut into Jimmy Carter's southern support, the chairman of the American Independent Party said Tuesday.

William K. Shearer, AIP chairman, said Maddox would have a good chance against Carter in three southern states.

Shearer told a news conference kicking off the party's third presidential nominating convention that if Maddox got the AIP nomination, he "would certainly cut in on Carter in the south" and would be "in the running" against him in Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee.

Shearer said he welcomed Maddox' candidacy, but also thought either Virginia millionaire Richard Viguerie or former Louisiana Rep. John Rerick would accept the nomination if it were offered.

Maddox, who defeated Carter for governor in 1966 and served as lieutenant governor under him in 1970, announced Monday he would seek the AIP nomination. He also denounced former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for endorsing Carter. Wallace was the AIP's 1968 candidate.

Shearer said he hoped the AIP would be on the ballot in more than 30 states and would benefit from both a substantial Republican "exodus" and Democratic support.

A Democratic party with both Wallace and vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale "can (only) be held together by peanut butter a little while," he said.

Shearer, of Lemon Grove, Calif., said he expected about 1,000 delegates to take part in the convention — about half the number that nominated John Schmitz in 1972.

Asked if he would welcome the death of the Republican party, Shearer said, "I guess so. But I feel the same way about the Democratic party."

He likened the choice between Ford and Carter to a choice between "elephantiasis and leprosy."

Employe hearings on city residency rule begin today

The City of Chicago Tuesday said it has scheduled hearings that could result in the firing of eight employes including two high-ranked firemen for allegedly violating a city residency rule by living outside city limits.

The employes are the first group charged with violating the rule which Mayor Richard J. Daley firmly endorsed last May when he said all city workers not living in Chicago, or in the process of moving into the city by Aug. 1, would be fired.

The firemen are Capt. Donald Johnson and Division Marshal John Measer, in charge of the fire detail at O'Hare International Airport.

City Personnel Director Dr. Charles Pounian said the hearings would take place Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Pounian said some employes who have admitted living in the suburbs but are attempting to move into Chicago have been appearing before an informal hearing board since early this month. Those employes have presented evidence such as leases or bills of sale to show they are moving.

Pounian said the burden of proof at the hearings will be on the city.

Others charged include: Frank J. Volpi Jr. and Michael Ruggiero, laborers; Natalie Drake, a typist; Anthony Coconate Jr., a truck driver; Joseph P. Ritti, a tree trimmer, and Richard J. Molitor, operating engineer.

A Real Shocker

by Ed Landwehr

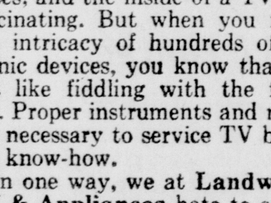

The "do-it-yourself" TV repair books have lost their following among home tinkerers. It is understandable that some folks like to tinker with anything that fascinates, and the inside of a TV set is fascinating. But when you realize the intricacy of hundreds of electronic devices, you know that it is not like fiddling with the family car. Proper instruments and meters are necessary to service TV besides the know-how.

In one way, we at Landwehr's TV & Appliances hate to see the "do-it-yourself" books go. Some of the resulting jobs we received were real challengers. One, for example, turned the lights off in the house when the volume was turned up to a certain capacity. It just burned out the fuses.

If the inside of your TV set fascinates you, phone 255-0700 and you can watch us service it in your living room. We'll show you some points that'll give you a real kick.

Stop over at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights and see our displays of the latest Color TV and stereos.

The way we see it

School year parallels unsettling

The fate of Northwest suburban school districts hangs in question as we approach the first days of the 1976-77 school year.

This situation this year in many ways parallels the status of suburban districts at this time a year ago with financial uncertainty and possible teacher turmoil.

Last year the financial carpet was pulled out from under Illinois' school districts with the last minute 6 per cent cutback in funds by Gov. Daniel Walker. Again this year, school districts were promised one thing and received another when the governor finished paring down the budget.

And again this year the state aid appropriation to schools is unsettled, with the legislature discussing an attempt to override the governor's veto of funds and restore schools to financial health.

Local school officials this year, however, were better prepared for the fund slashing and drew up their budgets with the expectation that less money would be available.

Despite their planning, the lack of funds will have an impact on local districts as those struggling with declining enrollment look to continued dollar problems in the spring and those struggling with growth look for ways to educate more children with less money.

Until the legislature finally resolves the school financing issue there is no way to tell how severe fiscal problems will be in our districts.

If the cuts hold, many districts will be wrestling with more budget reductions in preparation for the 1977-78 school year. If the legislature overrides the cuts, many districts will be given a year's breathing time to deal with their bleak financial projections. Although cuts are inevitable, particularly in districts with declining enrollment, they will not be as severe.

At the same time, more than a half dozen districts probably will begin the school year with unsettled teacher contracts — about the same number of districts that remained unsettled at the opening of school last year.

The shock and confusion of two teachers strikes last year rocked this area as teachers in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and later East Maine Dist. 63 took to the picket lines, while teachers in other districts protested at board meetings and passed out leaflets asking for support.

At this point, Prospect Heights Dist 23, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, River Trails Dist. 26, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96, High School Dist. 125 and High School Dist. 207 have no teacher contracts.

Hopefully the disruption of another teachers strike and the atmosphere of antagonism that so o f t e n accompanies unsettled contracts will be avoided for the 1976-77 school year.

That can only happen, however, if representatives from both sides work diligently toward a just settlement and make every effort to resolve contract disputes before the school bell rings.

Daniel Patrick Moynihan

'There's no point in being Irish if you don't know that the world's going to break your heart eventually. But life goes on.'

by IRA BERKOW

Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who is running for U.S. senator from New York has an elegant apartment on the ninth floor of a high-rise building on 78th Street in Manhattan. It is a chic block on the East Side and crime is not as great there as, say, on 127th Street in Harlem or on Fulton St. in Bedford-Stuyvesant or even crosstown on Tenth Avenue around where Pat Moynihan grew up in "Hell's Kitchen."

In the classy neighborhood in Manhattan where Moynihan lives now, there have been only three murders in the last two weeks, numerous muggings and copious robberies.

And the 49-year-old, 6-foot-6 Daniel Patrick Moynihan, candidate for senator, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, cabinet member or advisor to four U.S. presidents, ambassador to India, Harvard professor, holder of honorary degrees from 27 universities, this white-haired pillar, this distinguished citizen should not take a stroll around his block at night without the protection of a very big dog or very good track shoes.

Moynihan, wisely enough, was driving in a car through the neighborhood recently; maybe even wiser, driving out of it. He was in the back seat of his chauffeur-driven rented campaign car, going to a private airport in New Jersey where he would depart for a speaking engagement upstate.

In the back seat, he sat in a dark blue suit and dark dapper bow tie and an altogether shocking yellow shirt. His hair falls onto the right side of his forehead in miniature Virginia Mayo style, and his cheeks are cherubic and undeniably Gaelic. He looked at the passing street scenes.

Daniel Patrick Moynihan

"You know that one-fifth of all robberies in the United States are committed in New York City," he said. "And most of those are committed by people in the age group of 14 to 24.

"I remember reading some statistics from a Princeton University demographer. He said that every society throughout history has been invaded by barbarians. Even barbarians were invaded by barbarians. He called that age group from 14 to 24 the barbarians. They are people who don't know how to behave in society. And the older generations must go through a process of teaching them. The Chinese, the Germans, the Hindus, the Romans, the Huns.

"So the problems for a society are either increased or decreased depending on the number of these so-called barbarians. Here are some statistics which may reveal why crime has grown in the last 15 years, if I got them right:

"From 1890 through 1960, the size of this particular grouping grew by 11.8 million. In the 10 years from 1960 to 1970, the 14-24 age group increased by 12.8 million! Societies all over the world — not just the American society — could hardly cope with trying to civilize such an enormous influx.

"The tumult of the 1960s had a lot to do with this. There were conflagrations in America. But in France, for example, the young people almost contributed to the fall of the government.

"In May of 1969 De Gaulle actually left Paris and nearly went into exile in the country.

"The world had 10 times as many teenagers to try to civilize than ever before. It's like the python swallowing the ox. It will be accomplished, but it takes a lot of time and effort."

The boom in post-World War II babies has now leveled off, and Moynihan believes that the chaos has already lessened to a degree, as seen by quieter times on campuses.

"But the problems in the cities are still monumental," he said. He agrees that much of it has to do with drug traffic.

"Seventy five per cent of all the robberies in New York are drug related and committed by young people," he said.

"Somehow we've got to smash that damn international drug commerce. I think it can be done by the federal government through diplomatic channels.

"We should be emphatic that countries that grow opium are engaging in an unfriendly act as far as we're concerned. We do some of that now, but not enough. Not only that, but our bureaucratic arguments are a disgrace.

"Customs and federal drug enforcement officials and the FBI are involved in so much bickering it can break your heart. Who gets the money for informers? Who outranks whom? I mean, it can make you weep from frustration."

Daniel Patrick Moynihan grew up tough. His father left home when he was a boy. He was shining shoes in Times Square at age 14 when he first heard about Pearl Harbor, "the first major event after my childhood." He was serving as assistant Secretary of Labor when John Kennedy was assassinated.

"At the funeral, I remember saying, "There's no point in being Irish if you don't know that the world's going to break your heart eventually.' But life goes on," said Moynihan, looking out the car window.

Dist. 54 lunch program titled: Parent paid monitoring program

We attended the Dist. 54 School Board meeting on Aug. 5, at which the discussion centered on the parent paid lunch program. This phrase is erroneous since the parent is not paying for a lunch to be served. Whereas, Dist. 54 no longer operates a hot lunch program, the parents of students enrolled in Dist. 54 schools are not paying for "lunch." They are only paying for non-professionals to oversee their children eat lunch. A more appropriate title for this "service" should be the "parent paid monitoring program."

Today registration day for Dist. 54, parents who have not attended the school board meetings or have read in the newspapers about "Rosemarie Sells' selling job" will sign up for a lunch program thinking that for $35 their students will receive lunch. These parents are in for a big surprise!

However, this $35 fee is only directed toward families residing within 1½ miles of a school, which is the maximum walking distance. As parents of a student not being bused, we feel that we are being discriminated against by having to pay for our children and someone else's to be monitored at lunchtime. We think that all parents of students in Dist. 54 schools should pay this fee if their children plan to remain in school for lunch.

In addition, the Dist. 54 School Board mentioned that Mrs. Sells has had several programs in Dist. 54 in past years. This statement came as a surprise to many people at the meetings. Therefore, it seems that Mrs. Sells was not as well known in the district as the board members had hoped.

Also at the board meeting on Aug. 5, the question was raised among members of the audience as to the exact usage of the money.

Mrs. Sells made many excuses for not being able to deliver, claiming that she hasn't had ample time to prepare a budget. If she has not had time to prepare a budget, why was the arbitrary amount of $35 mentioned? Mrs. Sells also said that she planned to employ her own "auditor" to help with the budget. Was this "auditor" employed by her at the time she originally thought of this plan, or is he a second thought? A "good" auditor would be able to execute a budget for this type of project within a relatively short time. He would need only some very simple data, which are the monitor-to-student ratio, the salaries of the monitors and of Mrs. Sells herself, who is to pay the payroll taxes and insurance and the number of non-bused students.

It is a blatant disregard of the intelligence of the residents of School Dist. 54 to expect them to accept Mrs. Sells' proposal as it stands. She has not given any definite numbers or plans for the money. As it is to be our money, we question the secrecy of Mrs. Sells' salary, and the overall costs of her "plan."

Seek nail salter on Baldwin Road

How much longer will we stand for the unnecessary salting of Baldwin Road with nails?

I for one have stopped using this public road because I have spent almost $100 on two new tires and had six others repaired. Had it not been for the article in the paper I still would not know where these nails came from.

It surprises me that neither Barrington nor Palatine police departments have been able to catch or pinpoint the source after nine years. I guess the citizens will have to do it.

Need refundable service charge

Ticket outlets, of late, have a 50-cent service charge per ticket. This may seem fair if you see the concert, but why must you pay it if you don't? Upon a cancellation ticket outlets must give refunds. Policy indicates a refund on ticket value only; as a result, these outlets pocket the service charge. Let it be pointed out that when major groups cancel there are often thousands of tickets sold in advance! Why should we pay not to see a concert?

CHRYSLER CORPORATION'S Cordoba model features new front and rear styling for 1977, as shown in a Tuesday press briefing in Rosemont.

by LEA TONKIN

Chrysler Corp. executives offered a regional press preview of its 1977 autos at a meeting Tuesday in the Hyatt Regency O'Hare Hotel, Rosemont.

Richard K. Brown, executive vice president, said the company plans to cash in on strong industry sales of 11 million cars and 3.25 million trucks. Brown predicted the compact car will gain the lead as the most popular size auto during the coming year.

It may take a few years to convince big car devotees that the compact car trend is inevitable, Brown said. He noted that the Chicago regional market differs from the national market in several ways, including a marked preference for full-size automobiles.

THIRTY PER CENT of the cars sold in this area are full size, and intermediate sales bring the combined sales figure up to 60 per cent. Fewer subcompacts, imports and compacts are sold in the Chicago region compared to other major U.S. metropolitan markets.

Among the other Chrysler announcements:

- Cordoba, Chrysler's successful seller, features new front and rear styling and opera windows.
- The Volare continues in sedans, coupes and station wagons. Although the exterior styling appears little changed from the 1976 models, new colors, options and an optional electronic "lean-burn" 360 V-8 engine are additions.
- The Plymouth Fury intermediate models have new front and rear styling. Among the changes, rectangular headlamps are vertically stacked.

Brown predicts that intermediate models, followed by full-size cars and light-duty pickup trucks, will trail compact cars in 1977 sales. The trend toward the use of vans and pickups as personal "cars" will accelerate, he said. Brown said Chrysler's sales for the new model year will be close to 1.5 million cars and 500,000 trucks, an increase of 197,000 cars and 41,000 trucks.

Common sense can reduce housing woes

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

The other day the eminent Wall Street Journal ran a front-page article detailing how the rising cost of home maintenance is sending even the rich to the poorhouse. It was full of statistics that we're all aware of, if not in our brains then in our pocketbooks. Like the median price of a new home today is over $43,000, almost double what it was in 1970. And that homeowners are now shelling out more than 29 per cent of their take-home pay to own and run a house, compared with 23 per cent in 1965.

Cautions from a publication as prestigious as the Journal could indeed send shudders through the land, thus further devastating the already beleaguered home-building industry and all of the endeavors that depend on it — lumber, appliances, masonry, pipe, wire, not to mention a few million jobs.

I don't mean to make light of the high cost of homeownership, but the article is misleading in a number of ways. Sure, the median price of a new home is a lot higher than it was, but my guess is that the typical new home today contains more features than one did a few years ago. And a 25 per cent increase in ownership costs over a decade may actually be modest when compared with the increases in take-home pay over those years, and many other things.

Even more curious is the case history that the Journal uses to illustrate how an affluent family can get behind the eight ball as a result of housing costs. The family, Chicago suburbanites with a $30,000 annual income, bought their first home five years ago for a modest $22,000, taking out a $17,500 mortgage at a 7.25 per cent interest rate. About three years later, "the rooms seemed too small . . . his salary was increasing and they fell in love with a dilapidated eight-bedroom brick Victorian house" that was 80 years old.

THEY BOUGHT it for $70,000, taking out a $50,000 mortgage at a 9.6 per cent interest. And then their troubles really began.

Well, what do you expect? What kind of tomfoolery is that? The article goes on to tell how their heating bill astonished them, how much it cost to repair the leaky roof, how much it cost to put in new insulation, and how they went into debt to redecorate.

If this is a typical family facing housing cost problems, then one would have to conclude from the Journal article that we Americans are devoid of common sense when it comes to putting a roof over our heads. And I don't think that's the case.

Perhaps the family in question was devoid of common sense, jumping as they did, seemingly on a whim, into a giant clunker. But to represent such a case as anything near typical does a gross injustice to the whole housing industry.

Owning a home is not a whim to be satisfied. It's a basic necessity — with whatever niceties you can prudently afford — and common sense in the choosing of a home, and in the maintenance of a home, can keep your overhead within a reasonable range.

Business briefs

UAW picks Ford as 'strike target'

The United Auto Workers has chosen Ford Motor Co. as its "strike target" to set a basic auto industry contract or face a strike at midnight, Sept. 14, UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Tuesday. Pointing out that the union has gone on strike in each of the past three bargaining years — 1967, 1970 and 1973 — Woodcock said, "I'd like to break that pattern. But that's not our purpose. Our purpose is to get a satisfactory contract agreement with or without a strike."

He said that as the strike deadline approaches, negotiators will have to be "awfully close to a settlement" to keep the union from going out on strike again this year.

URW sets pact with Goodyear

The United Rubber Workers union Tuesday reached tentative agreement with Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. on a new contract designed to end a 127-day strike against the Big Four of the tire making industry. Goodyear and URW negotiators reached agreement during negotiations in Columbus while URW President Peter Bomarito continued talks with Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in Cleveland. The new contract with Goodyear provides for wage and cost of living benefits totaling $2.04 per hour over the three years of the contract.

Postal system to stay independent

The Senate rejected Tuesday a move to make the postal system an arm of the federal government again and then voted to subsidize the nation's mail service for another year It rejected, 58 to 26, a proposal by Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., to make the postal system part of the government rather than a semi-independent business. The bill now goes to conference with a House measure that calls for annual appropriations and a presidentially appointed postmaster general.

Food prices to rise at slow rate

Food prices will go up at the "relatively slow" pace of 3 to 4 per cent through the first half of 1977 if this year's crops are as big as currently expected and livestock production stays near recent levels, the Agriculture Dept. said Tuesday. For 1976 as a whole, it said, the food price average will be 3 to 4 per cent above 1975, compared with last year's 8.5 per cent increase and the 14.5 per cent leaps of the two preceding years. In the first half of 1977, the department added, most of the rise will be due to increased middlemen's margins and higher prices for fish, coffee and restaurant meals.

Britain mulls 3-day work week

Britain's worsening drought may force industries to cut back to a three-day week. Prime Minister James Callaghan summoned his cabinet ministers to an emergency session Tuesday to counter the water shortage crisis, government sources said. Lord Nugent, chairman of the National Water Council, warned of the possibility of a three-day work week in some areas, like that imposed in the winter of 1974 when a coal miners' strike crippled power supplies.

People in business

E. DOUGLAS TAYLOR of Elk Grove Village, chief product engineer-seals, for the Victor Products Division of Dana Corp., was elected chairman of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Seals Sub-Committee T-13 of the Transmission and Drivetrain Committee at a recent meeting in Detroit.

GARY W. PETRIE has been named commercial casualty underwriting manager and KENNETH L. HUTTON was named personal lines underwriting manager in Unigard Insurance Group's Arlington Heights branch office. Petrie joined the insurance group in 1972 as an underwriter and was advanced to personal lines manager in 1975. Hutton also joined the insurance group in 1972 as an underwriter, leaving to work as an underwriter for another company in 1974. He recently rejoined Unigard and was appointed manager of personal lines underwriting.

Stock prices continue decline

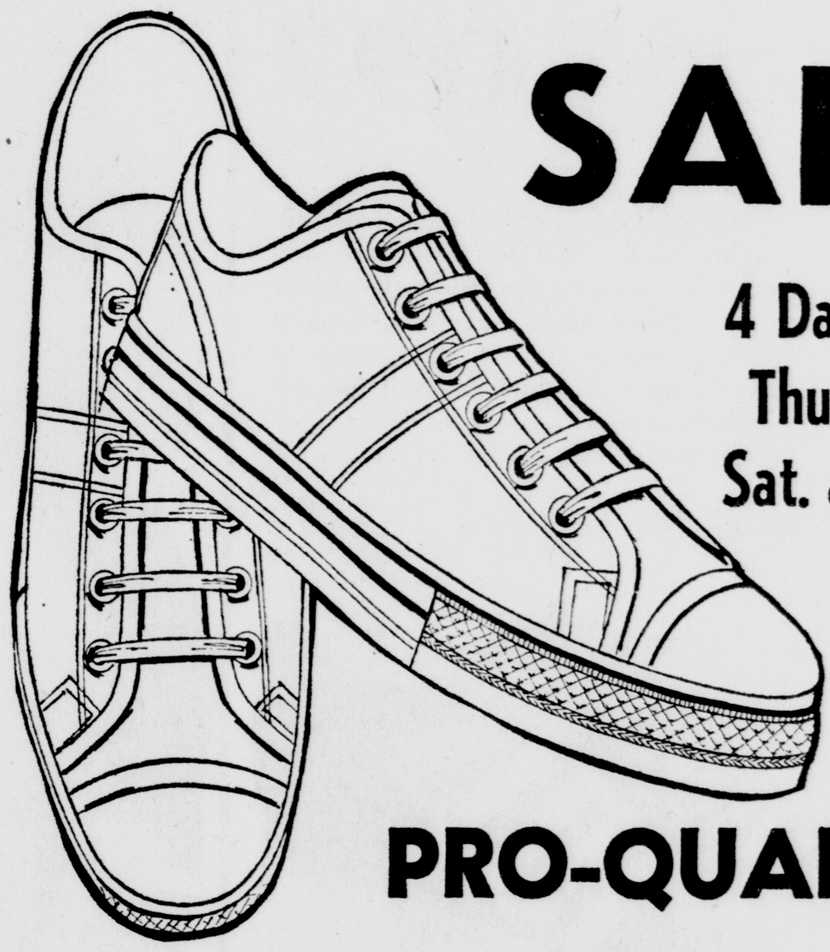

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell for the fifth consecutive session Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange when an early bargain-hunting rally fizzled.

Selling seemed to accelerate in the last hour after the United Auto Workers union said it had picked Ford Motor Co. as this year's strike target. Ford stock dropped 2¼ to 52¼. The UAW contract expires Sept. 14. Motors and chemicals were the big losers as the Dow Jones industrial average, ahead more than two points in the first hour, fell 8.56 points to 962.93, its lowest since it finished at 958.09 June 9. The Dow has lost 36.41 points in the past five sessions.

Declines led advances, 800 to 568, among the 1,853 issues crossing the tape. Volume totaled 16,740,000 shares, up some from the 15,450,000 traded Monday.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by three cents. Volume totaled 1,700,000 shares, compared with 1,720,000 traded Monday.

Working mothers

Time demands greatest hassle for divorced moms

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

(Third in a series)

Mary smoothed back her three-year-old daughter's blonde hair, deftly snatched a peanut butter sandwich before it hit the floor, and said things were looking up in her role as divorcee, mother and full-time worker rolled into one.

"Let's face it, in the beginning I worked full-time to make the best of a home situation I wasn't happy about," the Chicago schoolteacher explained. "It's still hard, but I think it's paid off — a mother shouldn't be the only person in her child's life. Now I can take my child to a swim class and she'll walk right in, wave goodbye, and say 'see you later, Mommy.' That's terrific."

Mary (not her real name) has been divorced for six months, has just purchased a condominium in Palatine after selling her home, and works full-time as an eighth grade teacher in the Chicago school system. She's one of many northwest suburban mothers who are going back to school, working, or both — and at the same time rearing their families alone.

WITH ONE OUT OF four marriages ending up in divorce court, alimony becoming an anachronism, and child support payments often spotty or non-existent, divorced mothers are, and have been, working full-time out of financial necessity.

Many of the problems they face are the same that married workers deal with. But the added dimension of loneliness and lack of a husband's moral support compound the pressures of a divorced mother's lifestyle.

"It's absolute hell to work full-time and have children if a woman is divorced," says Mike Ostrowski, a family and marriage counselor in Des Plaines and psychology professor at Harper College. "The concept of 'quality time' is a myth — you just can't work eight hours a day, commute and then sit down to read to a couple of young children. It becomes a juggling act because there just isn't enough time for everything."

OSTROWSKI RECOMMENDS mothers with both marital problems and young children "get on the ball and set yourself up ahead of time — don't be in a hurry to settle the divorce, and get a damn good lawyer for child support so you'll only have to work part-time."

Sue Papandrea, instructor of Harper's "Single Again" course, agrees that time demands are a divorced mother's biggest stumbling block. The course, aimed at divorced and widowed men and women with information on financial management, rearing children alone and career concerns, is offered in three sections this fall starting Sept. 14. Ms. Papandrea says a lack of time is one of the most common complaints she receives.

"Being a single parent definitely requires a lot more scheduling," she says. "Many women feel so guilty about spending time on themselves that they stop to ask if they have time to go to the library for a book."

But Ms. Papandrea maintains that a paycheck is one of the best counseling methods available. "There's nothing like getting out into the job market to salve that loss wound," she adds.

MARY, THE divorced Palatine mother, agrees. While she started back to work when her daughter was 18 months old out of a need to bolster her husband's shaky business, now that she's on her own, the job means much more than payment for her new condo.

"Working is very important to me. I'm going back for my master's this fall, and even if I didn't work full-time, I would go to school," she says. "I like getting up and making myself look nice every morning; I enjoy the mental stimulation of the job."

Mary's daughter is cared for, along with four other youngsters, in a licensed day care home by a woman who is herself a divorced mother. The atmosphere is "a very loving, caring one — and one my daughter needed after the uncomfortable time of the divorce," Mary says. Leaving is still a delicate situation, especially on Monday mornings when her daughter "puts on a little act. But she knows I'll always be back for her at the end of the day," Mary adds with a smile.

THE EVENING HOURS are a time when Mary and her daughter "just relax and have fun together. Sometimes we just sit and I love her . . . we both need that closeness," Mary says.

How does she cope with a household, preschool daughter and eighth grade term papers while at the same time adjusting to the breakup of a marriage?

"The first thing I did was learn to relax," Mary says. "I do what has to be done, but I don't try to cram it into one day. If the toilet doesn't get cleaned one week, so what?" Simple, nutritious meals have replaced gourmet efforts, and the result is that "chances are, I'll be taking my child to the zoo while the super moms are cleaning the house."

Still, Mary's glasses aren't quite rose-colored. At least an hour and a half of paper work follows her daughter's bedtime at nine, and she says "people find it hard to believe that I love to be alone." While she has no immediate plans for remarriage, she feels a sense of emptiness and "a sickening feeling when your child is sick, it's the middle of the night, and you're alone."

LEARNING TO COPE alone with two children, upkeep of a home in Buffalo Grove, and a full-time job on Chicago's northwest side has been a gradual process for Joan Siavelis, a programmer analyst who had been working several years before her divorce became final three and a half years ago. But unlike Mary, Mrs. Siavelis would give up computers if she had the option.

"I love my job, out I also love being a mother. In some ways, my kids have been the losers in all this," Mrs. Siavelis says. "Sometimes I feel like my only schedule is work, work and take care of the kids — if I wasn't working full-time, I'd have more time for them."

Joan's tight schedule has meant that her 14-year-old daughter and 12-year-old son take over many of the household responsibilities, but even so, her social life is limited to an occasional bridge game, dinner with a girlfriend and "a lot of reading."

IN ADDITION TO tackling a full work load, Joan also teaches data processing two nights a week at Harper each fall and attends classes one night each week to receive her degree. Going back to school was an important step in her career, and it's becoming a fact of life for many other suburban divorcees as well.

Parents Without Partners, a non-denominational club for widowed and divorced parents, reports many of its members are heading back to the classroom for refresher courses or college degrees; enrollments of divorced women are increasing at both Harper and Oakton Colleges. And Harper's Ms. Papandrea says, "It's a very small percentage of women who neither work nor go back to school in preparation for a job — I've seen many divorced mothers with a comfortable suburban lifestyle who don't need to work, but they still go back to school to make a new road for themselves. Once a divorced mother gets over that lack of self-confidence, it's a whole new world."

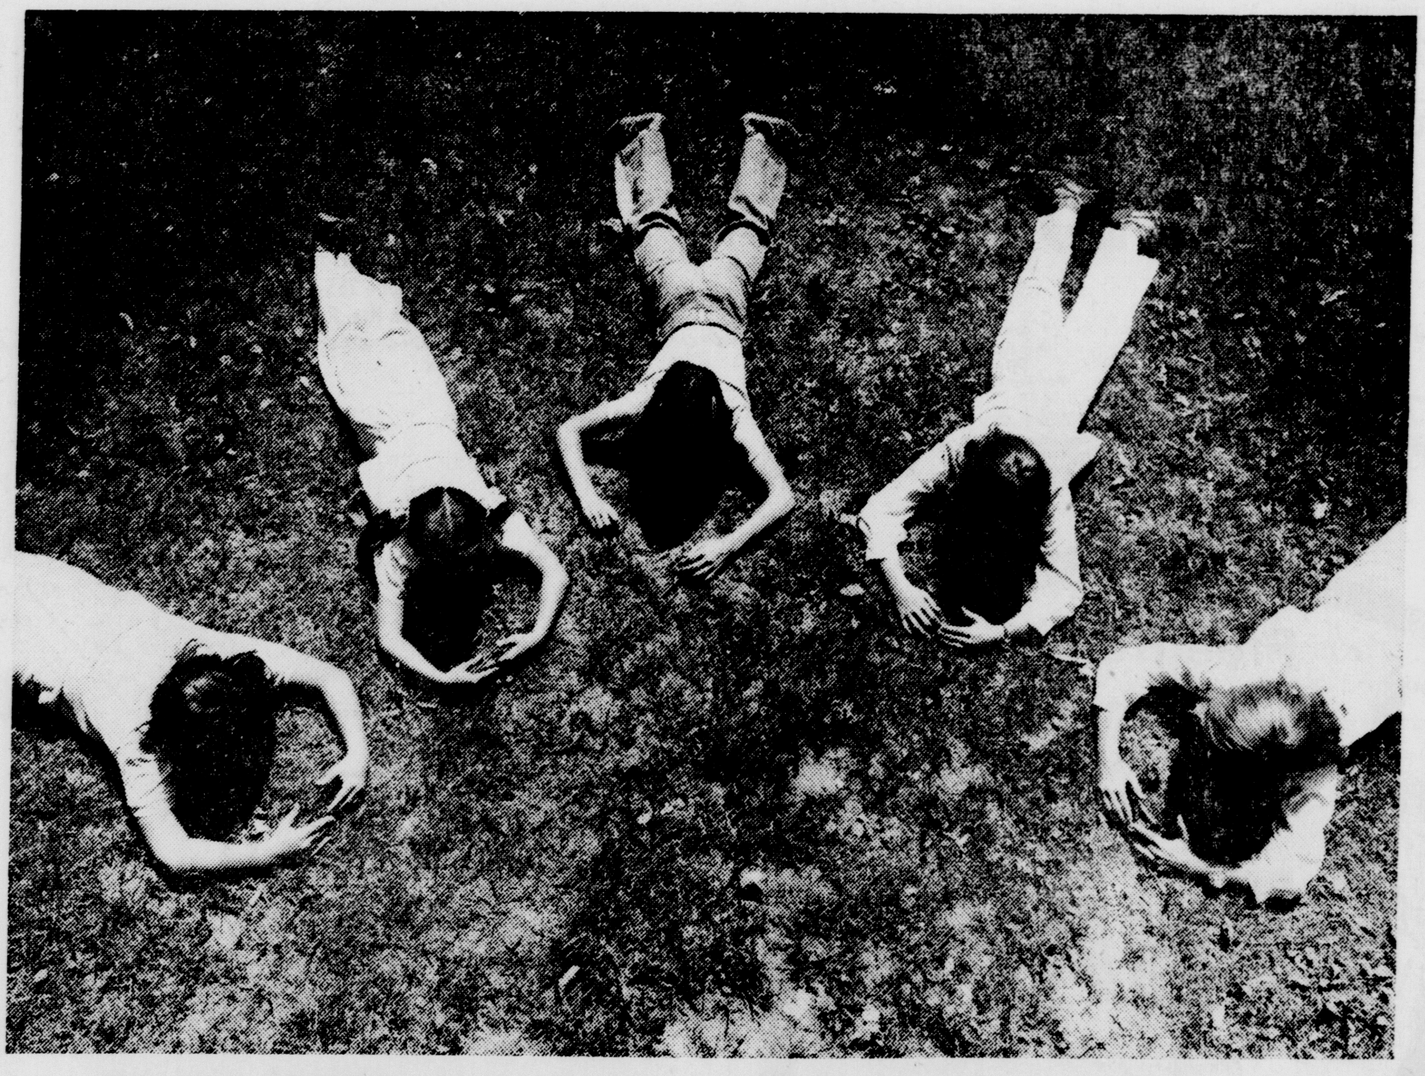

(Next: when children enter school)

DIVORCED MOTHERS, often faced with adjusting to both single parenthood and a full-time job, get some help from Harper College's Sue Papandrea, left, and Rena Trevor. Harper offers a "Single Again" course, which Ms. Papandrea instructs.

Out-of-doors was their learning laboratory

HOW MANY GROWING plants are inside your arm circle? Tiny animals? Dead leaves? Twigs? These were experiences at last week's environmental educational conference for younger members of Garden Club of Illinois. Stressing interaction of the senses of youth and nature, the experiences were designed to reinforce and imbed awareness and appreciation of the environment. Sound, touch and feel, color and sketching hikes were included in the sessions at Crab Tree Nature Center and Deer Grove.

EXAMINING FOREST litter during the environmental conference, Dawn Marconi, Palatine, learns leaves can be hairy, smooth, rough, cool, warm, bumpy or dry. The conference included informal lectures by U.S. Dept. of Agriculture naturalists who spoke on soil and water quality experimentation, animal habitats and forest environments.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Aorta may harden as we grow older

I need some information about my father, who is 63 years old, 5 feet 7 and 180 pounds. His blood pressure is 165 over 90. During a recent examination an X ray showed calcium building up in the aorta. Will you please give us your advice on this condition. He takes medicine for his blood pressure and eats a fat free, no salt diet.

The aorta is the large artery directly connected to the heart. It carries all the oxygenated blood out of the heart to the whole body. It arches above the heart and courses down along the spine until it divides into the arteries to the legs.

As people get older there is a tendency for the wall of this artery to calcify. This usually follows a build-up of fatty-cholesterol substances in the wall of the artery — the process in arteries we call atherosclerosis. Because the aorta is very large, the build-up in it does not cause a blockage to the circulation, the way it does in smaller arteries to the leg, heart, brain or other parts of the body.

Normally the aorta is very elastic. As blood squirts out of the heart into the aorta, it just stretches to accommodate the increased blood. Then it contracts by its own elasticity, helping to propel the blood along for its own normal circulation. This elasticity helps to keep the top blood pressure reading from becoming so high. But as the elasticity is lost, the aorta behaves more like a rigid pipe. When all the blood squirts out into the rigid aorta, the pressure rises immediately and higher than it would if the aorta were still elastic. So, your father's blood pressure is 165 when in a younger man it would be perhaps less than 130. This does increase the work of the heart some.

BECAUSE HIGH blood pressure is associated with an increased risk of heart attacks and strokes, I agree it should be treated. Moderate elevation such as your father has does not require heroic efforts though as the treatment may be worse than the disease. Your father would do well to decrease the rate of development of fatty-cholesterol deposits in other arteries in his body. He needs to restrict his calories enough to make this possible.

I would also advise a daily walking program to help maintain his level of physical fitness and help him reduce. Everyone who can should have an exercise program, even if it just walking, to go along with a diet program when they need to lose weight.

You can't judge by pounds alone, but there is a good possibility that your father needs to lose as much as 30 pounds of fat. The program should be to go on a restricted calorie program with walking and keep on losing fat until there is no significant amount of fat under his skin, around his waist or other locations. It will take time, but he should get started with such a program without delay. If he likes to swim, he should be encouraged to do so.

To give you more information on blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter, number I-8, Blood Pressure. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Stuffed pepper recipe for reader who asked

Dear Dorothy: Do you have a favorite stuffed green pepper recipe that you wouldn't mind sharing?—Marianne Trotter

Ever since Helen Claire introduced me to this recipe, it has been my favorite. Cut three large green peppers in half lengthwise; take out seeds and parboil in salted water to cover for three minutes. Drain and set aside. Brown one pound of ground chuck, sprinkled with onion salt, in a little vegetable oil. Then add the following: One-half teaspoon celery seed, one cup cooked rice, one small can whole kernel yellow corn (or one ear cut off and scraped), one-half teaspoon chili powder and one can tomato soup. Cook all this slowly until seasonings are blended. This usually means about 30 minutes. Put the pepper shells in a casserole and pile in the mixture until heaping. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese over it all and bake at 325 degrees until bubbly hot — about 40 minutes. Hope you like it as much as we do.

'Irreconcilability' not grounds for divorce

Dear Ms. Martoccio,

My husband harassed me continually for years and finally, when the atmosphere began to affect my son, the three of us went for counseling. When that didn't work and he left, I sued for divorce on the ground of mental cruelty. The case dragged on for five years and was finally dismissed.

I tried reconciliation during those years, but it failed.

My question is: if my husband returns and continues to harass me, may I use "irreconcilability" as grounds for divorce? Has the law been passed and signed by the governor? I know "No fault" divorce has not been, but I thought I heard on the radio something about irreconcilability has been passed. —V. B.

Dear V. B.

"Irreconcilable differences" is not now a ground for divorce but would have been had the "No fault" bill passed. But the Illinois legislature turned it down at the last session. It lost by 11 votes.

There's a good deal more to the "No fault" bill, but to sum it up, the bill would have permitted divorce on

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

"irreconcilable differences" under the following conditions: If the husband and wife had separated and lived apart for more than a year, or if the husband and wife had lived separately and apart for 60 days and each had filed in writing for divorce.

This isn't the end of "No fault" divorce, however. It will be coming up again in another session of the Illinois legislature.

Ask Andy

German made thermometer work

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Karen Niven, 10, of San Diego, Calif., for her question:
WHO INVENTED THE THERMOMETER AND WHEN?

Our bodies maintain a fairly constant temperature, usually right around 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. When you become ill, however, your temperature may rise and it is said that you have a fever. The instrument used to measure the body temperature is called a thermometer, but it is just one of many different kinds of thermometers.

Until the beginning of the 1700s there was no accurate method of measuring temperature. There was no way to tell how much hotter one day was than another except by using the body's senses. Doctors had to gauge the extent of a patient's fever by feeling his forehead and making an educated guess.

Early scientists had tried valiantly to devise an instrument that could accurately measure degrees of heat and cold. Unfortunately they had not been too successful. Galileo Galilei, the famous Italian scientist, invented the first thermometer in 1592. He called the device a thermoscope, but it was not very much like modern thermometers In fact, it didn't even have a scale.

For the next 125 years or so various types of thermometers were devised. They came in all shapes and sizes, and, like Galileo's, they consisted of glass tubes in which liquids rose or fell as the temperature changed. Most of these crude thermometers were hopelessly inaccurate and rarely recorded the same temperature in the same place. To add to the confusion, no one could decide on a standard scale.

The first accurate thermometer was developed in 1714 by the German physicist Gabriel Fahrenheit. Fahrenheit's thermometer consisted of a tiny glass bulb that tapered into a very thin tube that was sealed at the end. Inside the tube was a bit of silvery mercury. When the temperature changed, the length of mercury in the tube rose or fell. Fahrenheit also developed a scale divided into equal units called degrees.

There are many different stories concerning how he determined his scale. One is that he set his thermometer in a mixture of salt and ice and marked the lowest point to which the mercury fell. This he called 0 degrees. The next point on his scale was marked at 100 degrees which was the temperature of the human body. Dividing the space between these points into 100 equal degrees, he found that water froze at the 32 point. Extending the scale upward, he found that water boiled at 212 degrees.

Fahrenheit made one slight error in setting up his scale. We now know the normal temperature of our body is closer to 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit than 100 degrees. However, Fahrenheit's thermometer proved both accurate and reliable, and his scale, along with the Celsius scale, are the most widely used today.

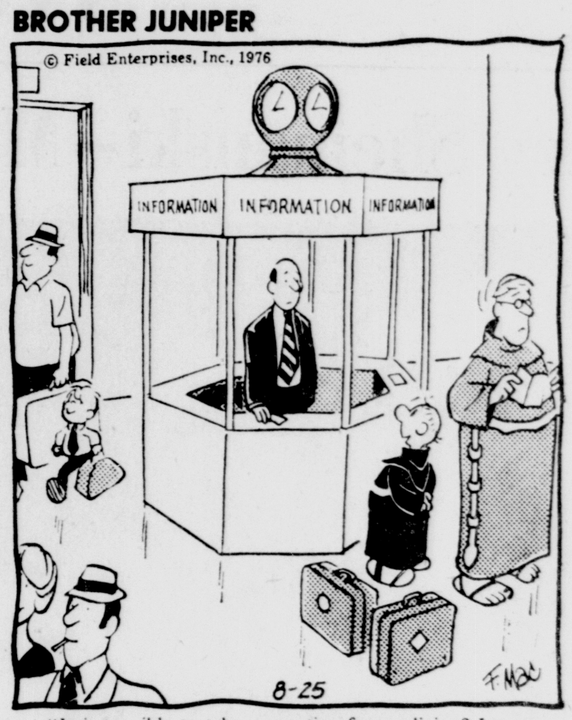

Andy sends a Student Globe to Lisa Stork, 7, of Jackson, Neb. for her question:
WHAT MAKES THE NETTLEWEED STING?

Plants have a great many enemies. They are devoured by large animals, such as horses, cattle and deer, and they are nibbled by smaller animals, such as rabbits and opossums. Insects, slugs and snails also chew their way through the plant world, pausing only to rest and reproduce. It seems only fair that the plants should have some means of protecting themselves — and many of them do. The stinging nettle, however, carries its protection just a bit too far.

The stinging nettle is a rather hairy plant with broad, heart-shaped leaves. Each hair is actully a tiny hollow tube that contains a watery liquid. The hairs are needle sharp at the tips and puncture the skin quiet easily. And when they do — oh my! — the watery juice is released under the skin and sets up an uncomfortable irritation. The skin around the tiny punctures may swell and turn red. Even though the irritation lasts just a short time, it is not much fun. This is why Andy always wears gloves when weeding his garden.

Jump bidding's the limit!

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

All jumps to game do convey the message that you want to play in that denomination. In case your partner has already limited his hand, you also expect him to stop. Thus, if you raise him from one to three notrump you are saying: "I have enough for game, but not enough for a slam and notrump is where I want to play the hand."

South's three notrump call with today's hand showed 19 or 20 points, preparation for any lead except that of his partner's suit and a desire to play notrump.

North had 14 high-card points of his own and a five-card spade suit, but his 10 of clubs turned out to be the key card for the slam. That card gave South a sure 12 tricks against any combination of East-West cards since it gave him three sure tricks in each suit. Actually, it gave him four club tricks so that he would have made the slam without one of the other queens.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Jerry Ford, take note

Election trail paved with images

Throughout the ensuing two months and a few days until Tuesday, Nov. 2, this country's voting populous will endure millions of words and thousands of pictures designed to inform us about two political candidates seeking the same office: President of the United States.

What a wate of good time and energy. Nearly every voter already has decided which lever to pull or alongside whose name he will scratch an "X."

It's either incumbent Republican President Gerald Ford or Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter.

There are other borderline candidates, too, but none of them will harness enough votes to scare a tick off an old dog.

DURING THIS MEDIA harassment, which occasionally will boot rubbish prime time television shows off the air to make room for debates and other things, we should keep in mind one very important premise.

That concept is that the experts already have established Carter as the odds-on choice to dethrone Ford and assume his rightful position as our 39th President in the coronation next January.

The experts insist Mr. Carter will kick Mr. Ford south from Washington, D.C., down to Plains, Ga., where Carter cronies will give the President his finest blocking and tackling lesson since his college football days.

Then Carter's bunch of peanut preachers will package the President in a gum wrapper for easy shipment back to Michigan's north woods.

Therefore, the time has arrived to express genuine compassion for downtrodden President Ford.

That is why I have sculptured this column. Perhaps there are a few tips which might help him retain a 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. address.

His suggested strategy should fall into these categories: Debates I, Debates II, Make-Up, Beads, Joints, Issues, News Media, Henry Kissinger and Voting.

DEBATES I; You're stuck with these, Mr. President. Make the very best of them. Since you asked Mr. Carter to become involved, you should keep the debates set on your own terms.

That is why all three debates should be staged in the White House pool. You always do well in the pool and there is not much chance that you can fall out of the pool. Your quick strokes and powerful kicks will show that you are strong of mind, spirit and body.

Besides, you are bound to gain an advanage when Mr. Carter wades into your pool while carrying his toothpaste in one hand and toothbrush in the other.

In those debates, Mr. President, you should avoid any of Mr. Carter's self-serving topics. You must refuse to debate such topics as "What Peanuts Have Done for Northern Blacks" and "Does the White House Deserve White Teeth?"

DEBATES II: Use an asset here. Send your wife, Betty, out to engage in verbal fisticuffs against Mr. Carter's wife, Rosalynn. Tell Betty to emphasize the topic "Does Every Daughter Deserve an Affair?"

MAKE-UP: You might remember that your predecessor, Mr. Nixon, lost his 1960 presidential bid to Jack Kennedy. Some people have said that is because Mr. Nixon resembled milk of magnesia during the Dick and Jack Debates.

Therefore, make sure that every little hair rests in place and plenty of rouge has been applied before wading into the White House pool to debate Mr. Carter. Also, use muscle tone oils.

BEADS: These should be worn around the neck and preferably with an open collared shirt. They will serve you well while campaigning at university campuses, women's bridge clubs and other centers of nonsense.

JOINTS: Ask your son, Jack, about these. They are a great campaign tool. They thrust Jack into the national spotlight, even though nobody has ever actually seen him with one.

Place one joint in your suit jacket breast pocket so that it can be seen by everyone. Another joint should rest behind your right ear. These will help draw in millions of votes from the middle class, which has made marijuana its popular passion.

Today

Mike Klein's people

ISSUES: Aside from your three debates with Mr. Carter, leave all discussion of issues to your opponent.

Nobody understands issues and could care less. You're concerned with image, not issues. Besides, if you give Mr. Carter enough rope, he will begin to babble about such impossibilities as a $90 billion federal budget decrease.

NEWS MEDIA: Treat these pencil-toters and shutter snappers with utter disrespect. Nobody likes the news media. They think we are prejudiced and overpaid.

Kick the media around long enough and it will run away into Mr. Carter's camp. Then it can record his words when he pledges to cut the cost of big government by eliminating half the U.S. Senate.

HENRY KISSINGER: Democrats will unleash a flurry of invectives against Super-K. Find the Secretary of State a nice gattling gun and a fast car. He's old enough to take care of himself and could transform the Democrats into mush as if they were cheese blintzes.

Presummary; With all these campaign strategies in mind, and allowing that you might have a few of your own, Mr. President, you are now in good shape. That brings us to the final category.

VOTING: Sometime near midnight on Tuesday, Nov. 2, summon the White House press corps to your chambers for a special announcement.

Tell the press, "I voted for myself."

Superstar West faces super coaching challenge

Jim Murray

Everybody knew what was wrong with the Los Angeles Lakers last season. They needed that superstar in the backcourt, that all-time guard, who could shoot, dribble, play defense, bring the ball up court, shoot 80 per cent from the line, make the big basket and the big play and all that.

So, they went out and got the best there is, the best in history, a guy with a 27-point average, third-leading scorer in NBA history, second all-time free-throw leader. This was the guy who changed the Minneapolis Lakers from a bunch of 6.3-points-a-night clowns into the Los Angeles Lakers, perennial division champions, who moved them from bankruptcy into the million-dollar contract category in his career.

Of course, Jerry West did all that with a basketball. He's going to have to do this now with a blackboard. Jerry West hasn't had anything bigger than a golf ball in his hands in two years.

The Lakers also seized the opportunity to beef themselves up in another position we didn't know they were weak in — general managers. They now have a backup general manager in Bill Sharman, I guess in case Pete Newell gets injured and can't answer the phone anymore.

Most of us thought the Lakers were really hurting at forward, but they didn't do much there, although they may bring in Dolph Schayes any day now.

The signing of Jerry West was, to say the least, unexpected. These will be the first games he's seen live in the Forum since he played in them. Jerry West and Jack Kent Cooke have been the best of enemies for some time now. The last time I looked they were suing each other for several million dollars, and even their lawyers were calling each other names. This is either a wise move, or the most complicated out-of-court settlement in legal history.

Jerry West's eyes filled with tears at one point in his press conference when someone told him the marquee outside had just posted a welcome to the new coach, "Mr. Clutch." But that's nothing. Wait until he gets a look at the Lakers. He'll need three handkerchiefs. The consensus is, Jerry lost the lawsuit, and the Lakers were the punitive damages.

Jerry West's credentials are as perfect, as say, Babe Ruth's for the job, but if he expects those guys to do what Jerry West did with the basketball, they're going to have to get a net over him by the second tipoff

Jerry West said the Lakers are going to concentrate on defense, which is a good thing. They can't concentrate on offense because they don't have any. Their "attack" last year looked like five guys waiting for a bus. It was hard to tell which five were starting and which were on the bench.

But I wish Jerry well. I remember when he first came up. I was on a trip with the Lakers, and this kid came into the room in a Syracuse hotel. He had a new hat which he said he had just bought but it looked as if it had been taken off a horse. It was two sizes too small. And at that time, Jerry spoke a language none of us knew. You had to be born in Cabin Creek. Jerry had his nose broken every other night in those days and usually had to talk through his ears.

But play!? You people just think Walt Frazier was good. Jerry West could do anything with a basketball, including make it disappear on the way to the basket. He could score from the locker room, and could fake his man back into his street clothes.

He himself could learn to play defense on the bus ride to the arena. His arms were just shorter than the Missouri River, and he had such peripheral vision he could see his ears.

But, Jerry West without a basketball is like John Wayne without a horse, Cagney playing a priest. Sitting around playing gin rummy at Bel-Air or putting for quarters is all right for a retired banker in whom the competitive fires have long since been banked.

But Jerry West looked like an eagle in a bottle. A lot of us were disgusted with basketball, but then, professional sports discards its aces as if it were so many unmatched treys. "It is not good for somebody to completely retire at age 38," Jerry observed somberly at his press conference. It's not too good at 68, Jerry.

Jerry was full of bubbling confidence at the coaching announcement. He gave the best definition I ever heard of that sports page staple, "multiyear contract."

"It means more than one year," suggested Jerry.

He is eager for the challenge. He may not be so eager when the team is on a losing trip over the Christmas holidays, his forwards disappear into John Havlicek's shorts by the third quarter, some rookie who couldn't jump over a 50-cent piece in three tries is demanding to be traded, but for now flags are flying, bands are playing, and life looks like an easy layup.

"Winning is contagious!" excitedly exclaimed the new coach. Alas! So is losing.

Arlington battles Michigan in regional

by ART MUGALIAN

If there's one thing Lloyd Meyer has learned in his years as a milkman, it's that the cream always rises to the top.

The part-time American Legion baseball coach, whose full-time hobby is delivering state titles to Arlington Heights, knows Grade A talent when he sees it, too. His 1976 Arlington Heights team owns a 44-8 record with victories in the district, county and state tournaments.

Now it's on to the regional tourney in West Lafayette, Ind. Meyer's crew meets the Michigan state champion to open the double-elimination tournament today at 1 p.m. The game will be broadcast on WWMM-FM (92.7), with Bob Houghton at the microphone, starting at 12:55.

"The amazing thing about this team is that they won the state title without (John) Mertins and (John) Igrasek," said Meyer between milk runs Monday afternoon.

"How many teams can win without their two best pitchers?" the coach asked.

Igrasek and Mertins were two of the top high school hurlers in the area in 1976.

Igrasek, a 1976 Rolling Meadows High School graduate, started the season with Meyer but his full-time job forced him to abandon basebal for the summer. Mertins was plagued by injuries all season and, though he can pinch hit or play the outfield, his effectiveness on the mound is limited to an inning or two of spot relief.

So Meyer has relied on Dennis Drolet, Bob Huber and Kevin McBride to carry the load on the mound and the three starters have responded with dazzling performances.

"I can't forget Todd Walker and Doug Harth," said Meyer. "Walker has been exclusively a relief man and he's always come in there and done the job. He and Harth won that championship game in Springfield."

The two rangy righthanders combined for eight-and-a-fraction shutout innings in the state title game against Granite City last week. Walker got credit for the win when Arlington Heights scored a run in the 12th.

For all the uncertainty over his pitching, Meyer has lived and died with his mound staff this year, particularly during the pressure playoffs. Drolet and McBride hurled complete-game shutouts in Springfield and Huber fanned 13 in beating Granite City in the opener, 2-1.

McBride, especially, has looked tough. The 6-foot-4 rightly earned a 4-0 victory in the Cook County tourney and held Logan Square to a single run over six innings in a tourney game Arlington Heights eventually won 5-3.

"I'll probably open with McBride in the first game," said Meyer, who admitted he knew absolutely nothing about the Michigan representative. "If we can get a well-pitched game to start with, we'll be on our way."

Another plus for Meyer is Jerry DeSimone, a hard-hitting infielder-outfielder who rejoined the club after spending most of the summer playing in the Central Collegiate League.

"DeSimone has been on the roster all year," said Meyer. "He played the first few games of the season so he's eligible. He's a good guy to have around."

Whether he starts in the outfield or just pinch hits, DeSimone will be of value to Meyer. The former Arlington High School star, now at Southern Illinois U., has faced tough pitching all summer and has plenty of experience.

One thing DeSimone won't do is push Paul Marsillo out of the shortstop spot. Marsillo, the state tournament's Most Valuable Player, is the spark that ignites the Arlington Heights fire.

Marsillo was credited with nine hits in the state tourney. The diminutive leadoff man, who seemed like he was always on base, walked four times and drove in seven runs to lead his team. It was his suicide bunt single that scored the winning run in the title game.

Final official tournament statistics also showed Mike Mayerck with eight hits in 16 at-bats, including a home run and five RBIs. Guy Tenuta had five hits, including a double and a triple, and Tom Barnard and John Vukovich each contributed five hits.

"We've always been able to score runs," said Meyer almost apologetically.

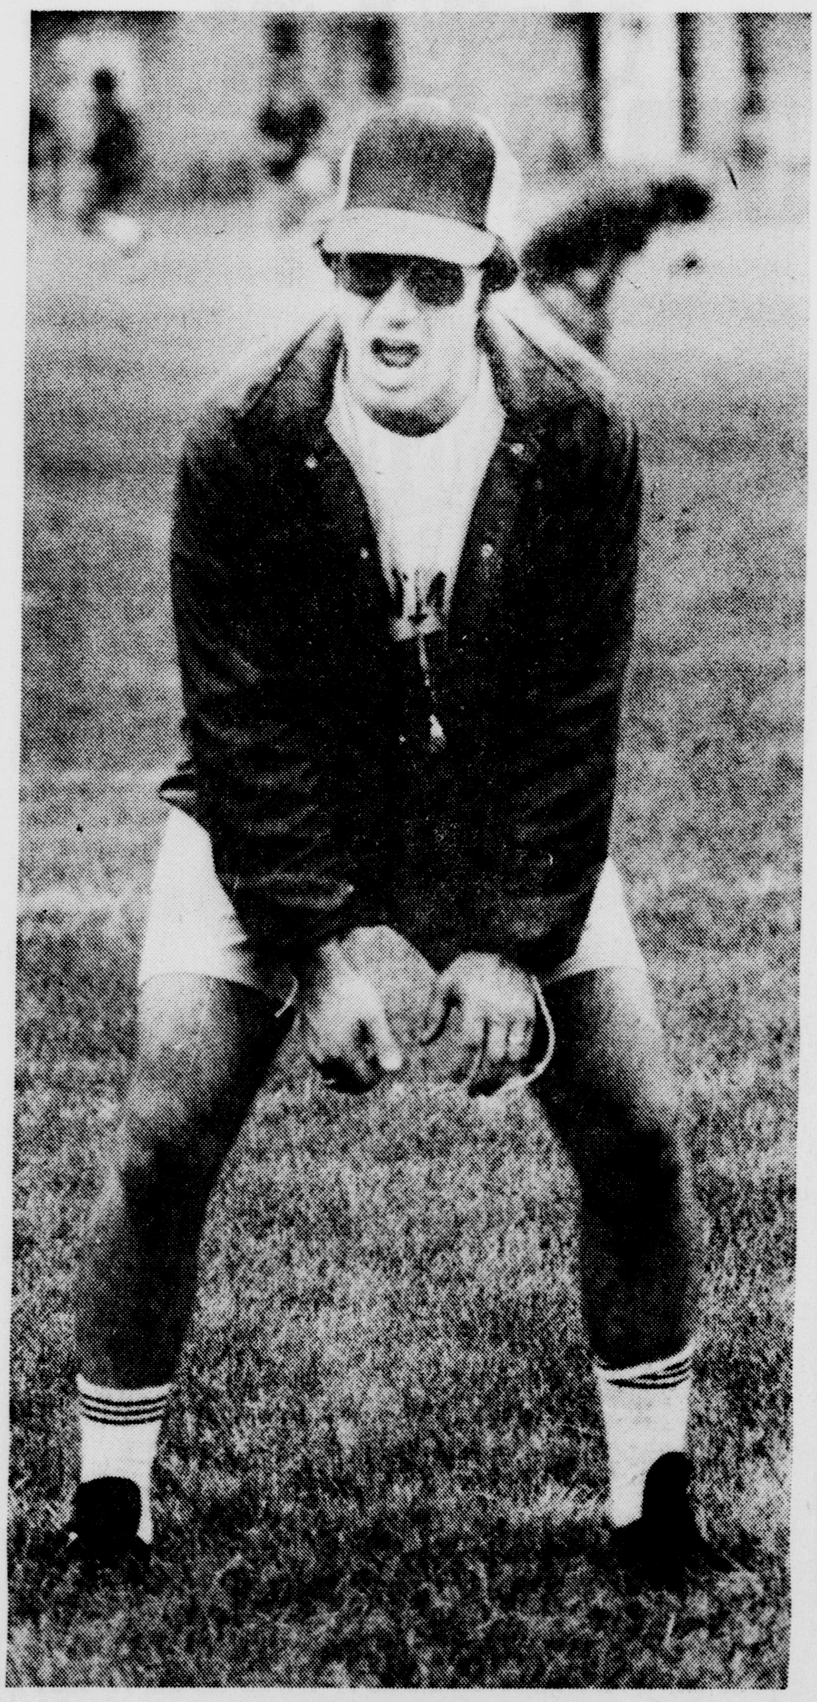

But the Arlington Heights coach returned his attention to the pitching, still the bread and butter for this particular milkman.

"I've been saying all year that the pitching has been my main worry," Meyer reminded. "And without Mertins and Igrasek, it's been tougher. But they've come through great — all of them. They've done the job."

And Meyer's team is where the cream is supposed to be — at the top.

LEGION HARDWARE. Arlington Heights American Legion coach Lloyd Meyer (right) and Bill Cook of Bill Cook Buick check out the luster on the state championship trophy won by Meyer's team. Cook's agency is main sponsor, along with Des Plaines Post 36, for Arlington team that enters regional play today at West Lafayette, Ind.

SHOUTING OUT INSTRUCTIONS on the first day of football practice is Schaumburg head coach Bob Ferguson, whose main goal will be a third straight berth in the IHSA Class 5A playoffs in November.

A new season...new hopes

by KEITH REINHARD

It was a typical August morning, hot, muggy, overcast, the kind of day best spent near a convenient air conditioner or a well-oiled fan.

Around the state, however, there were less comfortable chores addressing brawny schoolboys with visions of glory dancing in their heads.

It was the opening day of football practice and from Peoria to Kankakee, Carbondale to Zion, the familiar cracks, grunts and groans echoed off the dust and well-trampled schoolyard turf while coaches yelled and scratched heads at the inconceivability of sculpturing their own group into the semblance of a team.

It was no less a familiar scene here in the area. "A typical practice session," signed Hersey head man Joe Gliwa, "Some orientation, some consternation, some sweat and some tears, and one sprained ankle at the end of a long hot day."

The defending Mid-Suburban League North Division champs had outfitted 165 youngsters the previous Friday and made no big thing of their opening day of workouts. "It was a mild first day," Gliwa added. "We certainly didn't set out to conquer the world Monday.

Over in Palatine, Arv Herstedt saw things pretty much the same way. The Pirate mentor has been at the helm in the MSL longer than any other grid coach and he viewed the first day of drills as no more or no less an occasion than any of the previous seasons dating back into the mid-60s.

"It was a bit on the gloomy side in the morning but that was good . . . the sun in August can be pretty draining," Arv said. "If they moved the opening practice day up I'd go along with it but I'm satisfied with the amount of pre-season time we have now."

Herstedt and his staff had nearly 150 gridders to work with Monday and from past experience he expects another dozen or so to be added to the ranks when school begins. "It's a special season for us . . . our last before moving into a new school. We'd like to close the doors here at the old place on a successful note."

While their opening practice was typical, Gliwa and Herstedt no doubt shared with their contemporaries another aspect of the 1976 season in less than typical fashion. "It's a rules change," pointed out the Palatine pilot, "One that I think all of us coaches are viewing with mixed emotion."

The altered regulation has to do tackling and the use of the helmet, and face mask especially, in going after the opposition.

"I guess there's some concern about players who run their face and head into other players deliberately. I suppose there may even be some coaches who advocate this, but not very many," explained Herstedt. "I'm just anxious to see how officials will interpret and enforce the new rule."

"We're not going to change our own techniques very drastically and just hope for the best," offered Gliwa. "If the rule is enforced properly it shouldn't have any tremendous impact on the game."

Coaches in the area are awaiting a rules interpretation meeting early next month to clarify the situation. And, in the meantime, the grunting and groaning, the cracking and sweat and the tears continue to flow . . .

Bears trim squad to required limit

The Bears Tuesday put injured defensive end Roger Stillwell on the preseason inactive list and announced waivers on six other players.

The changes reduced the Bears' active roster to 49, which was required under National Football League rules. The roster list excludes Dennis Lick and Brian Baschnagel, exempt for now because they participated on the College All-Star team.

Put on waivers were recently acquired cornerback Ken Downing; tight end Ron Parker, a 16th round draft pick from Texas Christian; running back Dale Kasowski, a 13th round pick from North Dakota; defensive tackle Jerry Meyers, a 15th round selection from Northern Illinois; wide receiver Witt Beckman, free agent, University of Miami, and wide receiver Ivy Moore, free agent from Southern Illinois.

Stillwell, with an injured knee, will miss the exhibition game Saturday night at Tampa Bay, but could return to the roster before the Bears' last preseason game at Washington, Sept. 3.

Local golfers among state leaders

Schaumburg's Dick VanDerSande and Scott Burkhardt of Arlington Heights were among a handful of fresh faces vying for the lead in the 46th annual Illinois State Amateur golf championship after Tuesday's opening round in Frankfort.

Half a dozen golfers including VanDerSande and Burkhardt posted one-under 71s to tie for second place behind Rockford's Mark Taylor. The 16-year-old Taylor stroked a hole-in-one on the 17th green to finish at a torrid 68.

Also solidly in competition for one of the 30 qualifying berths to be earned after Tuesday's action are Tom Benjamin of Buffalo Grove at 73 and Tom Jacobsen of Schaumburg at 74. Craig Ridley of Mount Prospect finished at 77, David Nelson of Mount Prospect fired a 78, Dirk Anderson of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove's Larry Utley came in at 79 and Mount Prospect's Fred Fassnacht posted an 80.

Not one of a host of exempt entries and former champions were among the top seven entries after Monday's round. One of the favorites, Barrington's Gary Hallberg, withdrew while defending champ Mick Soli of DeKalb came in at 73.

Redskin, Oilers obtain veterans

The Washington Redskins and Houston Oilers visited the trade mart Tuesday and picked up some big name veterans. The Skins acquired disgruntled safety Jake Scott and defensive tackle John Matuszak while the Oilers picked up running backs Altie Taylor and Joe Dawkins plus offensive tackle Dave Simonson.

Washington got Scott, who has played in five Pro Bowls during his six seasons, from the Maimi Dolphins in exchange for safety Bryant Salter. Matuszak, the former No. 1 draft pick of the entire NFL (1973), was picked up from the Kansas City Chiefs for a series of undisclosed future draft choices.

The Skins also waived three veterans — running back Moses Denson, safety Spencer Thomas and linebacker Lonnie Warwick. Houston, meanwhile, also waived seven players including defensive end Bubba Smith.

Hockey joins Monday TV lineup

NEW YORK — The National Hockey League, without a national television contract last year, announced Tuesday it had syndicated on its own a series of Monday night Game-of-the-Week telecasts starting January 3. The games will be carried by the NHL Network, which was launched during last season's Stanley Cup playoffs.

In making the announcement, NHL Vice President Don V. Ruck said the initial telecast will match last year's playoff finalists with the Philadelphia Flyers meeting the champion Canadiens at Montreal.

The Monday night games will be telecast at 8 p.m. EST, with the exception of March 28, when it will start at 7 p.m. The NHL All-Star game at Vancouver is included in the package, but it will be played on Tuesday, Jan. 25, starting at 9 p.m. EST. The series will include 13 prime-time telecasts with the rest of the schedule to be announced at a later date.

Renee struggles to three-set win

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Dr. Renee Richards, the controversial transsexual who has stirred such a fear among women tennis pros, is not the invincible player that foes have made her out to be.

Little Caroline Stoll, a 15-year-old amateur from Livingston, N.J., made Dr. Richards a more human and vulnerable player when she battled through three sets before losing by scores of 6-2, 0-6, 6-1, Tuesday in the $60,000 Tennis Week Open.

Stoll, ranked No. 1 in the girls 16-years-and-under class by the Eastern Tennis Association, was outplayed in the first set before making a stirring comeback in the middle set. The majority of the crowd of 3,200 clearly cheered the local favorite and the 5-5 high school junior responded with fine topspin shots that produced numerous errors.

"I didn't resent the crowd at all," Dr. Richards said later. "It's that way in America, always rooting for the underdog. Caroline has a great future for a 15-year-old and she played an intelligent game."

Olympic weightlifters used drugs

MONTREAL — New laboratory tests have confirmed findings that some Olympic weightlifting medal-winners used illegal musclebuilding drugs before competing in the Summer Games, official sources said Tuesday.

The results, which could lead to lifetime bans in any further world competition and possibly loss of medals, now must go to the International Olympic Committee for further action.

The tissue-building drugs were also found in an American weightlifter whose identify was not revealed. No medal situation was involved in the American case, sources close to the investigation said.

Published reports have identified the American as U.S. Middle heavyweight Phil Gripaldi.

Reports have identified others as heavyweight gold medal winner Valentine Khristov and lightweight silver medalist Blagoi Blagojev, both of Bulgaria, and light heavyweight gold medalist Zbigniew Kacmarek of Poland.

DOWN BUT NOT OUT. Houston coach Bob Lillis (right) and Astros' trainer inspect Joaquin Andujar's leg after Houston pitcher slid safely into third base Tuesday. Andujar remained in game and got credit for 4-3 win over Cubs, whose Bill Madlock looks on.

Cubs lose 4-3, or so it seems

by ART MUGALIAN

Things were not what they seemed at Wrigley Field Tuesday.

The superbly successful winning pitcher was not as overpowering as he seemed and, conversely, the losing pitcher wasn't as bad as he looked.

Even the goat of the game between the Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros was not as culpable as most of the 11,111 fans seemed to think.

The only certain reality was the final score: Houston 4, Cubs 3. And, oh yes, the Cubs left the winning runs in scoring position in the ninth.

Houston starter Joaquin Andujar pitched the first seven innings on a yield of just four hits and one run. He didn't walk anyone and stayed around long enough to pick up his seventh win against nine losses.

But the rookie righthander was "hittable," according to several of the Cubs.

"I think we would have got to him eventually," said Joe Wallis, who had two of the four singles off Andujar. "He's got that big motion and it takes a while to pick up."

The Astros reached Cub starter and loser Steve Renko (5-7) for a pair of runs in he second inning after Bob Watson led off with a bloop single to right and Jose Cruz lined a hit just out of Manny Trillo's grasp at second.

Leon Roberts dropped a soft single into center field to load the bases, then the usually reliable Renko walked Ed Herrmann on four straight pitches to force in a run. The second run scored on a grounder.

"Renko didn't pitch a bad game for the time he was in there," said Cub manager Jim Marshall. "He kept the ball down and he just had some bad breaks."

Marshall had to lift his big righthander in the fifth, however, after Watson doubled in a run to make it 3-0. The inning began when Andujar bunted for a hit on a play that Renko probably should have made. Jerry DaVanon followed with an infield single.

A moment later, with the bases loaded, Watson lined a shot off the vines in left to score Andujar. But DaVanon, who had hesitated to see if the ball would be caught, was out at the plate on a strong relay from Jose Cardenal to Rob Sperring.

That was all for Renko and he was replaced by Paul Reuschel, who walked Cruz intentionally before getting Roberts on a fly ball to end the inning.

By the time George Mitterwald bounced into his second double play of the game, the crowd was booing him mercilessly. His first twin-killing ground ball came in the fifth with runners at first and third and nobody out and at least allowed a run to score against Andujar.

Anduja was gone by the eighth, having been lifted for a pinch-hitter by run-hungry manager Bill Virdon, but reliever Joe Sambito induced Mitterwald to tap into another double play after Wallis walked.

The Cub catcher's most unpopular play came in the top of the ninth when the Astros had runners at first and third with one out. With Watson at bat, Cedeno took off from first and Mitterwald fired wildly into center field as Enos Cabell scored and Cedeno took third. The run seemed frosting on a 4-1 cake, but the Cub fans booed louder than ever.

No one was covering second base on Cedeno's attempted steal, and the fact that Mitterwald tried desparately to adjust his throw made the heave look wilder than it really was. But when the Cubs scored twice in the ninth, Mitterwald surely appeared the scapegoat.

"That's a standard thing for a team to do in the ninth inning — send the guy like that," Marshall said later. "And half the time we won't even throw down. But George threw and somebody should have been there."

The way the game ended — with Cardenal on third and Madlock on second with the winning run — was even harder to take since Wallis was called out on strikes on appeal by third base umpire Ed Runge.

Sox win comedy of errors, 12-7

From Herald Wire Services

DETROIT — The White Sox, helped by four Tiger errors, sent 12 men to the plate and came up with seven unearned runs in the ninth inning to take a 12-7 win over Detroit here Tuesday.

Tiger manager Ralph Houk put in Jerry Manuel at second as a defensive move to start the ninth, and Manuel came up with two errors, including one on Pat Kelly's grounder to open the inning.

After Jim Spencer advanced Kelly to second on a ground out, Brian Downing singled in a run to make it 7-6.

But then a double play ball that would have ended the game was booted by rookie shortstop Mark Wagner. Wagner not only booted the ground ball, he threw wildly past second for a double error that put runners at second and third.

So Houk again went to his strategy manual and ordered an intentional walk to pinch hitter Ralph Garr to load the bases.

But the Tigers' third pitcher of the inning, Bill Laxton, didn't cooperate at all and walked pinch hitter Jack Brohamer to tie the score at 7-7.

Houk went to John Hiller, his fourth pitcher of the inning. Jerry Hairston stepped up for the Sox and rapped his second sacrifice fly in as many innings to drive in the go ahead run and give the Sox the lead for good.

Another error by Manuel and three successive singles made it 12-7 before an overworked Hiller finally got the side out.

The Tigers came up with six errors in the game. Bill Freehan figured in five of the seven Tiger runs, three of them coming in the second inning when he hit his 200th career homer with two men on off Sox starter Ken Brett.

Jack Hamilton (6-5) got the win in relief while Jim Crawford (0-5) took the loss.

Brett went 5-2/3 innings and again was the victim of some shoddy fielding by the Sox outfield.

The first three runs were definitely Brett's fault, as he walked two, then grooved one to Freehan who put it in the stands.

In the fourth, Brett escaped trouble after a routine popup dropped among Bill Stein, Chet Lemon and Jerry Hairston in short right center field.

But in the fifth, leftfielder Jorge Orta booted a base hit by Ron LeFlore, allowing two runs to score instead of one.

Brett gave way for Francisco Barrios in the sixth after he walked Freehan with one out.

Apparently upset, Brett stalked to the dugout and pulled off his shirt quickly before disappearing into the clubhouse.

WATCH OUT, BILL. Pickoff attempt at first base has Cubs' Bill Madlock cringing in fear, but Houston first sacker Bob Watson flags it down. Madlock was 1-for-3 and is now batting .335.

Pele (surprise) lands MVP honors in soccer

Pele, star forward of the New York Cosmos, has been selected the 1976 Most Valuable Player in the North American Soccer League.

The selection was made by NASL players in balloting conducted by the Sporting News.

Pele will receive the MVP trophy and a 1976 Toyota Corolla at the annual Awards Banquet on Aug. 26 in Seattle.

The 36-year-old Pele finished third in the NASL scoring race with 13 goals and 18 assists in 22 games. The 18 assists set a new league record and was a major factor in New York's league-leading scoring figures. He had a goal or an assist in 17 of his 22 games.

Pele scored the 1250th goal of his professional career in July against Tampa Bay in Yankee Stadium. No other player in the history of soccer has approached that figure.

Playing his first full season with the Cosmos, Pele was one of four New York players named to the NASL all-star first team. He was also named to the team in 1975 although he did not join the New York until June.

Pele's talents on the field are widely recognized and he played before 254,193 fans in 12 Cosmos road games during the regular season. Additionally, he helped attract a crowd of 58,000 in a pre-season game in Seattle, a record for soccer in the United States.

His last goal of the 1976 regular season has been called by some the most spectacular of his career. An over-the-head bicycle kick from 15 yards caught the corner of the net against Miami and was so outstanding that even Miami goalkeeper Van Taylor joined the applause.

In the balloting for the NASL MVP, Pele received 405 votes. He was followed by George Best of Los Angeles (325), George Chinaglia of New York (135), Derek Smethurst of Tampa Bay (123) and Bobby Moore of San Antonio (78).

The 1976 NASL all-star team was appeared on either the first, second or also announced and none of the Chicago Sting, who won their division, honorable mention teams.

No illusions about title

Packers hoping for .500

by GENE W. HINTZ

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Optimism and enthusiasm can carry just so far in the National Football League.

Green Bay Packers Coach Bart Starr is hoping they will take his team to at least a .500 record. He has no illusions about possible championships.

"We know we're limited in some areas and have a lot of ground to make up in others," Starr said. "But we're optimistic."

Starr, who in the 1960s became the most successful quarterback in NFL history, is also realistic. He knows the weaknesses must be shored up before the Packers become winners again. And he knows the shoring up process will take time.

Last year, in his first season as coach, the Packers were 4-10 and Starr doesn't want that to happen again.

The record, he says, was "very upsetting. I'm angry about it."

There are reasons for optimism and, while Starr won't admit it, an easier schedule is one of them.

A year ago, Green Bay faced the task of taking on Dallas, Minnesota and Pittsburgh — three of the NFL's best in back-to-back midseason games. In all, the Packers had seven games against teams that either tied for a championship or won a playoff berth. This year, Green Bay has only five such games.

Starr also feels he has a team that thinks as he does and will never give up. After that tough midseason stretch, for instance, Green Bay won three of its last five games.

Another reason for optimism is the offensive line, a weak spot last year. It has improved with the return of guard Gale Gillingham after a year's retirement, the addition of tackle Mark Koncar, a first round draft choice from Colorado, and a year's experience picked up by tackle Bill Bain, last year's No. 1 choice.

The running backs, led by John Willard Harrell, appear solid. The wide receiver corps should be better with Steve Odom, Ken Payne and Eddie Bell a trio of small but proven, pass catchers.

The biggest offensive question is at quarterback.

Starr during the off-season sent veteran John Hadl to Houston for Lynn Dickey, whom Starr considers a most promising signal caller. Dickey, however, must still prove himself. His development in training camp was slowed because of a shoulder injury.

The biggest problems appear on defense, where Starr is attempting to develop a pass rush from his front four, to mold an almost all new defensive backfield into a unit and to put together a solid linebacking corps.

The lack of a pass rush was apparent in the team's opening exhibition games. The Packers went through two full games before recording a sack.

Fred Carr is considered one of the top linebackers in the league but Starr and assistant Dave Hanner have had trouble filling the other two spots.

Jim Carter, playing the middle, has been plagued by injuries the past three seasons and he suffered another blow in the third pre-season game when he broke his wrist. Until then, it appeared, he had been better than ever. Rookie Tom Perko filled in and appears promising though green.

Gary Weaver seems to have won the other outside linebacking job but Tom Toner, a starter at the start of the 1975 season, is challenging.

In the secondary, Johnny Gray, a rookie a year ago, is the only man who was starting at the end of 1975 who is back at the same position. Al Matthews, probably the most consistant performer a year ago, went in the expansion draft and Ken Ellis, a veteran starter, went to Houston in the Dickey trade.

Charlie Hall has moved into Matthews' strong safety position and Perry Smith has been shifted from left cornerback to right to replace Ellis. Willie Bucahnon, attempting to come back from a second broken leg, has regained the right corner spot.

Starr said Buchanon appears fully recovered. He concedes the success of the secondary depends on Buchanon's comeback.

"If he's all right, we're going to be all right," Starr said.

Rookie M. C. McCoy and second-year man Steve Luke are the most promising of the replacements.

Despite the apparent problems, Hanner is optimistic and feels the defense will be "much improved" over 1975.

"With the people we have, we shouldn't be pushed around by anybody," he said.

Starr admits the going will not be easy for Green Bay in a division that includes Minnesota and two young, improving teams in Chicago and Detroit.

The Vikings, he said, are still dominant, Detroit, he feels, is the most improved team in the league. As for the Bears, Green Bay's oldest rivals, Starr said. "They have so much talent, they frighten me."

Reggie knows he has it made

Money talks and Jackson listens

Bob Gallas
Staff Sportswriter

$3,333.33.

That's what Baltimore's Reggie Jackson could get to play the game of baseball — one game of baseball that is.

Jackson, a superstar in his own right, doesn't know for whom he'll be playing next year. A free agent after the season is over, Jackson doesn't really care.

What he does care about is money. And if he gets his way, he won't have to worry about money anymore.

Insiders say Jackson is demanding and will probably get a five-year contract worth about $2.5 million. Some

Reggie Jackson

$1-million will be delivered up front, with the rest paid out at $300,000 per year for five years.

That works out to a cool $3,333 per game if Jackson plays in about 150 games a year.

Jackson gave a clue to what's the most important thing on his mind when the Orioles were in town over the weekend. Involved with Sox pitcher Ken Brett in a shouting match in Baltimore the week before over Brett's inside pitches, Jackson was asked by a reporter if he heard the fighters' bell the Sox sounded every time he stapped to the plate.

"Don't you guys ever get tired of talking to me," Jackson said, making the 'you guys' sound like he was talking to a bunch of vultures.

"If you saw my bank account, you'd know it didn't bother me," Jackson said when pressed for an answer.

Right on, Reggie. Whenever you get in trouble, trot out your bank account. That'll make the peons heel.

What Jackson doesn't realize is that when 'you guys' stop coming around, maybe he won't be able to command such exorbitant paychecks.

Sure Jackson's a first rate ballplayer, but he's also a gate attraction. Not only can he win games with his bat, he brings people out to the ballpark, a fact not overlooked by the man signing the checks.

Jackson, an eloquent man at times, hasn't been making too many friends lately. Near paranoid since he was hit in the face by a Doc Ellis pitch earlier in the season, Jackson shrieked at Brett while circling the bases after a home run. Brett, he thought, had pitched him too close.

Later that night, Jackson got in a nose to nose shouting match with Sox broadcaster Harry Caray, one of Jackson's biggest boosters. Caray, not one to mince words, told Jackson his actions that night were "bush."

Jackson was contrite enough when the Orioles were in town last week. He admitted he blew it, then went into his crying act over how everybody pitches him too close, how he got hit by Ellis, how his career could be ruined, etc. and ad nauseum.

The fact is any pitcher in his right mind has to pitch Jackson in tight. Their only alternative is to put one out over the plate, like Terry Forster of the Sox did Sunday.

Jackson blasted it for a bases-loaded homer.

They say Jackson's changed quite a bit since his humble rookie days with Oakland. One of his former associates at Oakland disagrees.

"He hasn't changed He's two different persons. He can charm the birds out of the trees one minute and be the biggest S.O.B. you ever met the next," said the acquaintance who spent a season in the Oakland front office.

But Jackson couldn't care less what others think about him, no more than he cares who'll be signing those whopping checks he'll be getting next season.

The California Angels are rumored to be a probable new home for Reggie, who prefers the West Coast, but Baltimore claims to still be in the running.

Jackson just keeps smiling — all the way to the bank.

California quarterback Joe Roth

No sacking this football star

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

BERKELEY, Calif. — It almost requires a fictional amalgam to come up with a recent composite of Joe Roth.

You toss in one portion of Clark Kent (changing in a telephone booth), add a dash of Joe Palooka, spice it with a touch of Li'l Abner (sans Daisy Mae) and finish it off with a veneer of Frank Merriwell.

The result: one prospective All-American quarterback for the University of California.

He has already made the mandatory pilgrimage to Hugh Hefner's palatial penthouse on the north side of Chicago. There, when not ducking the pass rush of Playboy bunnies, he was memorialized in living color, along with his mythical All-America teammates, for a forthcoming issue of Playboy.

The folks back home in Jerome, Idaho, won't have to blush when it comes out. Joe will be fully clothed in California blue and gold.

The California golden look of him is immediately obvious when he enters old Harmon Gymnasium on the Berkeley campus, and the office of the resident flack, John McCasey.

McCasey is an open-faced young Irishman who, with admirable verve, wants to show off a young scholar touted as the finest passer of a football in collegiate circles.

Ample blond hair curls all around Joe's head in neat waves, a crowning wreath for a well-built young man who stands an erect 6 feet 2 and a half inches. He wears one of those horizontal striped rugby polo shirts that are in vogue, sandy corduroy pants and scuffed gym shoes.

When he walks — we are strolling down to Martino's on Shattuck for a cheeseburger — his toes turn in markedly. That pigeon-toed waddle does not seem to encumber him on a football field.

There is only one mark which seems to distinguish Joe Roth from a lot of kids his age on this sunny day in the Berkeley hills. It is on the left side of his face, a light red welt that runs from above his ear (covered by the hairline) down past his jaw and terminates in a quick veer on his neck.

It tells more about Joe Roth than the statistical sheets in McCasey's office: "In 1975 Roth hit on 126 of 226 passes for 1,880 yards and 14 touchdowns, for 8.4 yards per completion. His accuracy rate was 55.8 per cent for the season . . ."

Two years ago at this time, young Roth had no idea he was going to be a football player at the University of California. He was wondering how long he'd be alive.

Joe was sitting in a doctor's office in San Diego in May 1974 and listening to the most desperate words:

"You've got cancer. A malignant melanoma. We've got to go in and cut it out. I don't know what we'll find. You might live three months. You might live a year. Maybe we'll catch it all and you'll be O.K."

There had been this mole near his left ear. Joe remembers irritating it when he was shaving. He had a tough time stopping the bleeding. Then, playing football at Grossmont Junior College (in his home town of El Cajon, Calif., where San Diego spills over into suburbs), the helmet kept rubbing it raw.

He went to a doctor. The doctor burned it out. But the mole returned. And continued to aggravate him. He was finally sent to a dermatologist, who excised it and assured him his trouble was over. But as a precaution, tissue was sent to a lab for testing.

At the time, the end of his freshman year at Grossmont, Joe's parents were in the process of moving to Jerome, Idaho — his father, an aircraft plant supervisor, is retired. On campus one morning, Joe was told that an appointment had been set up with a doctor in San Diego — and that his parents were coming in from Idaho.

"I knew something was up," he says. "But I wasn't prepared for what the doctor told me that morning — that I had cancer. They operated on me right away, that afternoon."

It was a Monday, and for three days Joe sat looking out his hospital room, watching the airplanes coming in to land at the San Diego airport.

"The longest three days I ever spent," he recalls. On Friday, he was discharged and given a clean bill of health. The surgery had cut all the way down to the lymph nodes in his neck.

By fall, Joe was out for football again, completing his second season at junior college and attracting a host of college offers. He chose California because he liked Mike White's pro offense, which employs the traditional dropback passer. And also because Steve Bartkowski, after a sensational senior season, had graduated to the pros as the No. 1 draft pick in the National Football League.

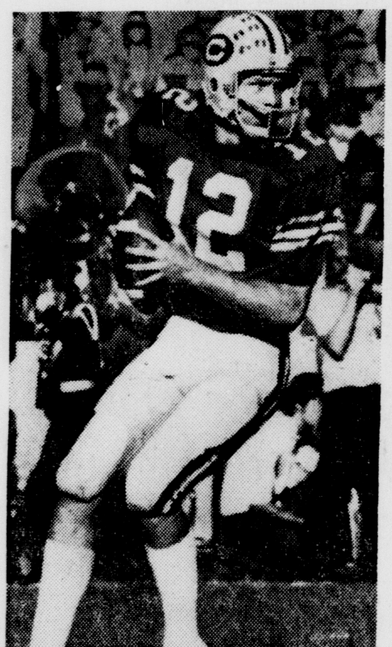

But coming into a new system takes time. He was not the starter when the season began. He took over in the second half of the third game, against Washington State, and rallied the Bears to their first conference triumph. With Roth passing brilliantly to receivers Steve Rivera and Wesley Walker, balanced by the super running of All-American halfback Chuck Muncie, California won eight of its last nine games and tied UCLA for the Pac-8 title.

He has spent the summer before his final season working in the university's duplicating offices, making $3.90 an hour, and throwing passes in his spare time to receivers Wes Walker and George Freitas.

California, with its free speech movements and laissez-faire social attitudes, is not a natural habitat for the tight world of jockdom. So an All-American like Joe Roth can roam the campus without attracting much attention, or being hassled. He doesn't belong to a fraternity. He doesn't drive a big car. He studies — he's a good student — and plays football.

And, rubbing that scar on the left side of his face thoughtfully, he's damn glad to be doing it.
